Carmel says 'Grace!'

Ken White elected to council, Jim Wright retains seat

By NANCY HILLS

"IT'S TURNED out the way I thought it would, but I wouldn't have bet money on it, would you?"

That statement by one Carmel resident after the dust had settled and votes counted after Tuesday's election, summed up the feelings of many political pundits in town — it was a race no one could call beforehand.

'I had a lot of supporters who worked hard. We ran a low-key campaign and didn't pressure people.'
— Jean Grace

But in the end, on April 12, 1988, Jean Grace, a Monterey Bay Air Pollution Control District field representative, was the winner by 276 votes over her nearest contender, retired public administrator Clayton Anderson.

A "very happy" Grace said her first order of business was "to be sure that everybody in town feels they are a part of the process and that the rhetoric and vindictiveness of the campaign is behind us."

The mayor's race in particular had been marred by continuing rumors and accusations, which left many Carmel residents weary and just ready for it to end.

Grace will be sworn in at 4 ~~p.m.~~, Tuesday, April 19 in front of Carmel City Hall.

"She'll make a great mayor," Anderson said as the final count came in at a packed city hall.

The 54.8 percent turnout — 2,141 votes in total — garnered Grace 1,144 votes and Anderson 868.

Carmel entrepreneur Paul Laub ran a distant third with 51 votes; then political newcomer Michael Kovac with 41; radical environmentalist Tim Grady with 21; and artist/photographer Paul Blaine Henrie with 16.

The vote will not be officially certified until Thursday.

Two years ago, when current Mayor Clint Eastwood challenged and defeated incumbent Charlotte Townsend, 73 percent of Carmel's voters went to the polls.

Grace was endorsed by Eastwood early in the campaign and was bolstered by

THE CHEMISTRY of the Carmel City Council changed dramatically last night, as Ken White and Jim Wright were elected by a considerable margin over their five opponents with Jean Grace capturing the mayor's seat.

Wright, who has served on the previous two councils and was in the minority during much of the Clint Eastwood administration, was pleased with the results.

"I'm delighted that Ken White got in," he said Tuesday night from the Village Corner Restaurant, where his victory party was held. "I was among those that encouraged him to run, he had my support all the way."

The unofficial results: Wright (1,159), White (1,211), Howard Nieman (660), Carla Belgrano Ramsey (617), John Kennedy (268), David Larkin (103), James Ogle (69) and Michael Marnell (21).

The new councilmembers and mayor will be sworn in at 4 p.m. Tuesday, April

Shaky plank

Dear Editor:

I do not think Paul Blaine Henrie will be elected Carmel's next mayor, but he may as well learn now as later that one of the planks in his platform will not hold any weight whatsoever.

He suggests (Pine Cone, April 7) that Carmel "should monitor incoming traffic and stop cars from coming in when the town is judged to be full."

This sounds like such a nice, simple solution to Carmel's traffic crunch, and this is not the first, nor probably the last time, that the idea has been proposed, but there is a state law which forbids closing any public road constructed with public funds, to any or all public traffic (except in the case of emergency, such as fire, landslide, flood, etc.).

Since all Carmel's streets were constructed with public money, they cannot now be closed simply for the purpose of traffic rationing.

Pebble Beach may close its roads; they were privately constructed. And that is why it may collect an entrance fee. Some or all of that fee goes to road upkeep.

Public parks, like Point Lobos, Big Sur, or Golden Gate Park in San Francisco, can ration their traffic, but these are parks and a different law applies.

Criminal freeway

Dear Editor:

Since it appears the Caltrans is going to shove an overpass at Rio Road down our throats, I think we should do whatever can be done to block the building of the freeway altogether.

I never have seen the necessity for the freeway in any case. No one has shown me that widening the existing Highway 1 to four lanes from Rio Road to Ocean Avenue will not fix the traffic problem (with a left turn underpass onto Carmel Valley Road). In fact, widening Highway 1 from just Carmel Valley Road to Ocean Avenue will solve the problem effectively and save a couple of extra million to boot.

Santa Barbara has effectively blocked construction of the 101 Freeway through their fair city. Why cannot we do the same? I hope we do not get stuck with the Rio Road overpass. It would be criminal.

Joining together

Dear Editor:

I have just completed reading my favorite section of the Pine Cone namely, Letters to the Editor. This issue is of special interest as it is the last issue prior to the election on April 12.

At this point, nobody knows who the winners are for the mayor's chair and the two city council seats. Like other voters in the city, I have made my choices from an excellent group of candidates. In my view of what is best for Carmel, I believe that I have made wise choices and hope that the majority of Carmel voters share my view.

But what if I am wrong and (God forbid), none of my choices are elected. Should I assume a "hang-dog" expression and dredge up all the sour grapes that I can think of? No, I think not! I prefer to think that collectively we, as intelligent and responsible citizens of Carmel, will unite behind our newly elected representatives, and incumbents, in the belief that they will do their utmost to further the kind of life we are privileged to enjoy and would like to continue having in our chosen village.

As one writer expressed it in a letter to the editor, "After the votes are counted on April 12th, our community will join together with dignity and grace (Clayton, maybe?) (Italics mine), dedicated to preserve our beautiful town..." My sentiments exactly!

Kudos to Carmel PD

Dear Editor:

At the March meeting of the Northeast Carmel Neighbors Association our guest speaker was Sgt. William Uretzky of the Carmel Police Department. After an interesting presentation, Sgt. Uretzky graciously answered questions. There has been much concern by the residents on Carpenter Street and Third Avenue of the traffic heading north and a request was made for a "caution" sign to be painted on Carpenter Street before that intersection.

Well, within three weeks this was done and we appreciate the promptness with which Sgt. Uretzky followed through on our request. We appreciate his consideration of our concerns.

Highlands Freeway?

Dear Editor:

There is a similarity between the Caltrans design for the Hatton Canyon Freeway and the tunnel at Monterey's Fisherman's Wharf.

Before the tunnel and the Highway 1 freeway were built, traffic was directed to Monterey and converged at the Custom House and Fisherman's Wharf. Carmel was just a left turn off Fremont at the stoplight. It was no coincidence that Fisherman's Wharf and the end of Alvarado were the most active commercial areas on the peninsula.

Attention of planners and city officials became focused on how to solve the traffic bottleneck problem. The tunnel was the solution. After the tunnel was built, traffic bypassed Fisherman's Wharf and was directed to Cannery Row. It is not surprising that the focus of commercial activity shifted from Fisherman's Wharf to Cannery Row.

The Caltrans design for the Hatton Canyon Freeway will have a similar effect on the focus of commercial activity at the mouth of Carmel Valley. Traffic problems may be relieved at Carmel Valley Road and Rio Road, but by shunting traffic past Carmel Rancho and The Crossroads an abrupt bottleneck will be created just south of Carmel River where there is now no commercial development.

The issue of solving the traffic problem at Carmel Valley Road will then shift to a more difficult issue: how to solve the traffic problem in the Highlands and how to resist the inevitable pressure for full-scale commercial development — shopping center and hotels — in the Highlands. This pressure will be exerted by developers and the merchants of Carmel Rancho, The Barnyard, and The Crossroads who will want to relocate in an area of traffic concentration.

If you want major commercial development in Carmel Highlands, support the Caltrans proposal for the Hatton Canyon Freeway. The freeway will not reduce traffic in the Highlands; it will significantly increase southbound traffic. Caltrans' next project will be the Highlands Freeway.

The Hatton Canyon Freeway will focus commercial development interests on Carmel Highlands just as the tunnel in Monterey diverted commercial development interest from Fisherman's Wharf and the redevelopment area to Cannery Row.

From Down Under

Dear Editor:

I recently visited your beautiful townships of Carmel and Monterey and the magnificent coastline after many years of planning. It was wonderful. I loved your quaint little specialty shops, in the quiet narrow streets and of course the new shopping plaza which fits into your little town without a conflicting contrast.

Carmel in Western Australia is set in the hills and also has a beauty of its own, it is an agricultural valley producing some of the state's first-grade fruit and vegetables for local and overseas trade.

I hope that any of your readers visiting West Australia contact me and use our Homestay and meet an Aussie programme in Carmel in the Hills West Australia, they won't be disappointed.

Seeking Mildred Knerr

Dear Editor:

May I request your assistance in a rather obscure research project?

I am researching the life and work of Harold H. Knerr, the cartoonist who drew the popular "Katzenjammer Kids" from 1914 until his death in 1949. While his comic strip was enormously popular, almost nothing is known about the artist.

Mr. Knerr was a bachelor. He lived alone in a hotel suite in New York City for the last 15 years or more of his life. So what does this have to do with Carmel? you may ask. His obituary in the New York Times (July 8, 1949) mentions that he was survived by a sister, Mildred Knerr, of Carmel, California. This was over 38 years ago, and it may well be that Miss Kneer is also now deceased. Still, I am hoping that someone who knew her and her famous brother may still be in the area and available to be interviewed.

If you have any information that might be helpful in bringing to light the details of Mr. Knerr's life, even the smallest shred, I would be most appreciative.

Many thanks for any help that you may be able to offer.

Water and interchanges

IN 1916, when Carmel organized as a city, the council members were known as "trustees." Good thought. Today's city council is still charged with a trustee's high duty to protect the town.

As we welcome a new mayor and council, let's keep sight of two urgent matter: water, and the visual mass of the two Hatton interchanges.

This year is the driest on record with less than half the normal rainfall. Historically, we are likely to face two dry years back to back, sometimes three in a row.

Do we husband our guaranteed share of the peninsula's available water now, or do we take a chance on severe rationing if next year is dry? One answer is a major slowdown in new buildings to save water for existing businesses and residents. Another is water conservation, with a question. How do we get people to conserve if the water saved goes for development?

A third answer is to prod the water agency into early rationing of big water users, such as golf courses, to build a reserve for next year. One thing is certain. Carmel's opinion on water risk is as expert as that of the water agency, maybe more so given the wayward politics at that agency.

Freeway interchanges at each end of the Hatton route can be suppressd to avoid visual mass and bulk. If not done, we agree to become a lookalike with big cities. For example, Caltrans demands a high berm to carry traffic over Rio Road because dipping Rio Road through a sunken underpass has higher costs. Caltrans is concerned only with its costs, not total costs over the years to our community from a berm which splits the town.

Our option is a half-point increase in the countywide sales tax. This new money could find the extra costs to sink the Rio Road underpass. After construction, future revenues would go for badly needed transit projects throughout Monterey County.

Surprisingly, Mayor Eastwood's most notable and lasting contribution to a better Carmel can come after he leaves office — on the Hatton interchanges. All he has to do is lend his hand to expedite approvals of the special transit tax at city halls around the county and help carry the message through the governor to Caltrans.

Water and interchanges are top matters hot on the front burner. They interlace with and tend to dominate Carmel's other concerns. They override our political differences.

These two issues pose a test for the new council. Will our council members luff around and falter, or will they live up to their affirmative duty as trustees to protect the town? Nothing could be more disastrous to our future well-being than mishandling the water and interchanges issues. Time is short.

White is top vote-getter, Wright retains seat

19 at city hall, located at Ocean Avenue and Monte Verde Street.

White, who will serve on his final Carmel Planning Commission today, said that he initially ran a low-key campaign but had to change his strategy in midstream.

"When things started snowballing, we realized we would have to defend ourselves and spend more money than we budgeted," said White, who ran repeated ads in The Pine Cone and other local newspapers.

He added that he was unclear what the final tab will be on his campaign.

Wright said that while he expects to have an ally in White, it will be up to Grace to keep things balanced.

"The key is Jean Grace and how flexible she will be," he said. "And how soon she can put the campaign behind her."

White agreed. "I really want to see us heal some wounds. We need to spend some time talking among ourselves."

Wright added that he is willing to start fresh with Grace, even though he said that he was disappointed that Clayton Anderson was not elected.

"I won't have any problem with Jean Grace," he said, and added, perhaps, with a sense of relief, "The makeup of the new council will be a lot easier to work with."

The council will most certainly reflect the change in members, with the absence of Mayor Clint Eastwood and Councilman Bob Evans, who many times aligned with Councilmembers Elinor Laiolo and Bob Fischer.

With that in mind, White said he wants the council to set an overall five-year plan that the city can follow.

HIGH ON that list, for White, is for the residents and business community to work toward a common goal — keeping Carmel's small-town atmosphere.

He said recently he heard several merchants indicate that part of the problem is the day visitors who arrive on tour buses.

"I'm really beginning to question if tour buses are beneficial in the long run to our city," he said.

He added that the merchants and the residents are impacted by many of the same adverse problems — traffic and lack of parking.

But if some of White's priorities may seem radical, he said he ran on a rather "dull" ticket — call it a common sense platform.

"It was decided we would not run on a ticket," said White, referring to his moderate stance. "But we would run right down the middle."

He likened it to the style of football that has the ball carrier running off tackle all through the game. "It's dull, but it wins."

Wright's approach to the council is as an old-timer, one who first began his tenure several years ago during the Charlotte Townsend administration.

He took a more pragmatic stance than White.

"There will be a little different philosophy on the council than before," he said. "A different point of view, you might say."

He added that the first two or three months will probably be taken up with the councilmembers learning to work together.

That's not to say that he does not have an agenda, he certainly does.

The first item is the specific plan for the R-4 district, the largest developable parcel in Carmel.

"I think we'll want to take a good hard look a the R-4 specific plan," he said, referring to a plan that many say calls for a density that would ruin Carmel. "There's so much controversy it might be a symbolic act, if nothing else, to shelve the specific plan. It's not going anywhere."

Another crucial issue, he said, is the proposed $25 million Hatton Canyon Freeway project, which the council has endorsed in the general plan.

"I wouldn't expect that the council would change the general plan," he said. "But it will be interesting to see as the (Hatton Canyon) plans become more defined...if the council changes its view."

NOT ALL of the candidates, of course, could be winners. But most of them appeared to have enjoyed the fray.

"For the first time out, I'm happy," said Jack Kennedy. "I think it's been a learning experience — I'm very encouraged to stay involved."

Kennedy said that he still has one year to serve as a trustee on the Harrison Memorial Library Board.

James Ogle said that he learned a lot about how the political machinery works and, like Kennedy, will continue to present his ideas to the city.

"I'm definitely going to make proposals to the planning commission about a bicycle lane," he said, referring to the principal plank in his platform. "(And) I'm willing to serve on any commission."

And you probably haven't seen the last of him, "I'd like to run again, next time," he said.

For Larkin, who only moved to Carmel several months ago, the opportunity to run presented unexpected results.

"I'm excited," he said. "I didn't really expect to get any votes. It's nice that some people bucked the obvious people and voted for me."

Larkin said he will now put his efforts into the Hatton Canyon Freeway project and give his input into a practical design for peninsula residents.

Candidates Howard Nieman Jr. and Carla Belgrano Ramsey could not be reached for comment at press time.

two personal letters from him in the last two weeks of the race asking Carmel residents to vote for her on April 12.

Grace told reporters that she felt Eastwood's support had "helped quite a bit" and "at the same time it was low key."

Eastwood, who was out of town, had called her election day and wished her luck, she said.

"I had a lot of supporters who worked hard," Grace said. "We ran a low-key campaign and didn't pressure people."

Of the council, with Ken White as its newest member, Grace said, "I think I can work with all of them and I hope they can work with me."

The campaign had been "fairly hectic," she added.

"It's like Monty Python's Flying Circus," she said over the hubbub at city hall while the votes were being tallied.

HER PRIMARY issues after she is sworn in April 19, she said, will remain the same as the ones she spoke about during the campaign.

Grace said she plans to continue study sessions on the Sunset Center parking garage and "start discussions on the best methods to establish a citywide parking district."

Other issues she wishes to pursue are settling the future of the Handley property, which she hopes the city can purchase; encouraging the development of a reclamation plant on the peninsula; legalization of second kitchens; retention of Flanders Mansion and properties in Mission Trail Park; and preservation of Carmel's present open space and acquisition of more if possible.

"The city has a lot of things in the works right now. It's just a matter of going on with them," she said.

Grace said she has no plans to replace any members of any of the present commissions or committees, but she will have to consider a replacement for planning commission chairman White, who was elected to the council.

"I have not asked anyone yet," she added.

Grace added that many of the people she has encountered during the campaign may fit the bill.

"Some of the people running for council, such as (John) Kennedy, would be good if he is willing to leave the library board," Grace said.

Also, she would like to see mayoral contender Kovac stay active in Carmel government.

ANDERSON TOOK his defeat philosophically, and stated he planned to "stay active."

"We will move our proposals along," he said.

Those include surfacing the Sunset Center north field parking lot, a handyman program for the elderly, retaining residentially oriented and quality businesses and fighting intensification of the commercial district, he said.

Anderson said he was proud of his campaign and had "no regrets" about the race he ran.

"We ran a good, clean campaign," he added. "It's been a great experience. I had the support of some good people and made a lot of new friends."

Library board awards bid for construction on annex

By DAVID LELAND

THAT'S NOT a light at the end of the tunnel, what we have here is library annex in its last stages of development, which will surely brighten the lives of many Carmel residents.

Last week the Harrison Memorial Library Board of Trustees awarded Salinas-based Hampshire Construction Co. a $600,000 contract to renovate the Crocker Bank building — located at Sixth Avenue and Mission Street — which will transform it into the long-awaited Harrison Memorial Library Park Branch annex.

For more than 27 years, Carmel has been attempting to ease the overcrowding at the Harrison Memorial Library, located at Ocean Avenue and Lincoln Street.

"This will free a lot of space in the Harrison Memorial Library," said library trustee chairman Jack Billwiller, who has attended, by his count, about 50 meetings during the past year in an attempt to coordinate the project. "The staff (at the library) has been awfully good. Now they will finally be able to sit down while they work."

The past two administrations — Charlotte Townsend and Clint Eastwood — made the annex project a top priority. And last year the city purchased the vacant bank building, with the board of trustees contributing about $250,000, toward the $1.75 million purchase price.

While appointed by the mayor, the five-person library board — with an annual budget of about $170,000 from outside the city — is mandated by state law and acts as an arm of the state and county governments.

Through the years the board has wisely held onto contributions from private donors and the Friends of the Harrison Memorial Library (which recently donated $25,000), and at the beginning of the annex discussions had more than $1 million in its coffers.

The actual signing of the contract between the city and Hampshire is scheduled to take place this week, with construction slated to begin in late April or early May, Billwiller said.

And while city officials had hoped for a summer opening of the annex, Billwiller said the new building will be in operation "sometime after Labor Day (Sept. 5)."

For those slightly behind the times, the Carmel City Council initially approved the annex concept in August of 1986, and scheduled it for a vacant lot across from the library at Sixth and Lincoln.

Those plans were changed, however, when it was discovered that it would be less expensive and less hassle to renovate the bank building, which had an existing water permit.

Architects Bill Foster and Gretchen Flesher have designed the annex, which will house childrens services, administrative offices, technical support and a local history room.

BILLWILLER SAID that the board has worked very hard to keep efficiency up and costs down at the new annex.

Initially the board had budgeted only $502,000 for the renovation, but the lowest of the seven bids received for the work came in at about $623,000, he said.

"Even the lowest bid came in higher than we expected," he said. "So we had to figure some cuts to bring it down into our price range."

While cost-effective, Billwiller said the cuts weren't too painful. Deletions came in the form of a less luxurious color of carpeting, metal instead of wooden shelves and less-specialized millwork.

"It was not as much as I was afraid we were going to have to cut," said Billwiller, adding that the city has pitched in to remove the portico where the drive-up banking window stood, which prevented parcel service delivery. "It'll be a pretty building still."

One cut involves the main floor, which is about 1 inch shorter in the back than in the front. Billwill said that surface will remain slightly off-kilter, but not to worry.

"You won't notice it drunk or sober," he said, adding that a mural destined for the walls of the library has also been delayed for the time being.

When completed, the first floor will house Carmel's first history reading room.

"This is something that Carmel has never had," said Billwiller, referring to the reference room. "It will be able to display books and manuscripts of Carmel authors who have been around since the beginning."

The area will also have a vault for the storage of rare works.

The childrens' area will have a separate circulation desk and will be broken up into a story area, older childrens' section and young adults' area.

The remainder of the first floor will include restrooms (for patrons only); technical services, which is currently housed at Sunset Center where workers catalogs and processes new books; and administrative offices.

The 2,500 square-foot lower floor, which is not a basement because it does not lie directly under the top floor, will be used as a storage area for books not being used. A dumb waiter will be installed for the transport of those books.

And while Billwiller, as chairman of the board, has had to do more than his fair share of work on the project, he gives credit where credit is due.

"I think the (library) board had done a lot on this," he said. "To be fair, it's had a lot of cooperation from the city.

"There has been a friendly feeling from the council — that has not always been the case."

Rev. Coffin is former Carmelite

REV. WILLIAM Sloane Coffin, world-famous peace activist who spent three years as a student at Sunset School in Carmel, will speak on the American military budget at Monterey Peninsula College Sunday, April 17 at 7 p.m.

Coffin was chaplain at Yale University for 17 years and then senior minister at the Riverside Church in New York City for 11 years. He was chosen as national president of the newly merged SANE/Freeze organization last fall.

The 10-year-old Coffin came to Carmel with his mother, sister and brother in September 1934, shortly after his father's death of a heart attack in New York City, where he had been born.

"Mother had chosen Carmel in large part because of the excellent reputation of California's public schools," Coffin later wrote in his memoir, Once to Every Man. The family spent its first night at Pine Inn.

Soon after they arrived in Carmel, Coffin's mother bought him a second-hand bicycle with balloon tires "that not only looked great but were the answer to Carmel's dirt roads."

In this account of happy years in Carmel, he wrote that "to repay Mother and to earn a little spending money, I got up early every morning to deliver the Carmel Pine Cone on a paper route which followed the mile-long Carmel Beach and then swung around Carmel Point where the surf was so powerful that high above the rocks, riding along, I often caught the spray. It was a paper route as distinguished as it was scenic, for I threw the Pine Cone up the path that led to the houses of Robinson Jeffers and Lincoln Steffens' family."

He remained at Sunset School through the sixth, seventh and eighth-grades, transferring in the fall of 1937 to Deerfield Academy in Massachusetts. During those three years, the family lived in a rented house on Camino Real.

For the last 25 years, Coffin has been a national leader in the peace and civil rights movements. He founded the disarmament program at Riverside Church shortly after he arrived there in 1977.

His talk, "Transforming the Military Budget," will be sponsored by the Monterey County SANE/Freeze organization. For reservations, call 372-8887, or purchase tickets at the MPC Theater entrance. Tickets are $5 in advance, $6 at the door, and $3 for students.

Reclamation EIR will study four distribution schemes

By NANCY HILLS

RECLAMATION WAS again a topic for discussion as Monterey Peninsula Water Management District boardmembers decided on a "scope of work" for its environmental impact report on the distribution of drinkable water freed up by a proposed sewage water reclamation plant.

The board determined that the report would investigate the results of four different distribution schemes, none of which includes a previously approved division by thirds.

However, two of the four concepts approved by the board for the EIR are variations on the original plan to divide the water by giving one-third to Monterey County, one-third to Carmel and the remaining third to the other five cities in the district.

The cities of Seaside and Pacific Grove strongly objected to that distribution, claiming it unjustifiably favored Carmel.

About 816 acre feet of drinkable water will be available after the completion of a reclamation plant at Carmel Sanitary District. The plant's financing will be guaranteed by the Pebble Beach Co. in exchange for an entitlement of 380 acre feet of drinkable water. The company plans to use the water to develop about 900 residential units in Del Monte Forest.

The reclaimed water will be used on Pebble Beach golf courses. The golf courses will purchase the water from the water district.

Because California-American Water Co. will lose revenue when the reclaimed water is used on golf courses, it will request from the Public Utilities Commission a 5 percent increase in rates for its entire service area.

After the Pebble Beach Co. receives its entitlement, the water district will have about 436 acre feet of drinkable water to allocate to county and cities within its boundaries.

The EIR will investigate the effect of five distribution formulas, including:

- One hundred percent to Monterey County. The 816 acre feet will be subtracted from the county's allocation.
- One hundred percent to drought reserve.
- Thiry-five percent to Monterey County, 25 percent to Carmel and 40 percent to all other jurisdictions based on their growth projections.
- The same as above only the 40 percent would be distributed 50 acre feet at a time to any jurisdiction, including Carmel, which exceeds 97 percent of its allocation.
- Distribution among the place of origin for the water. Carmel's sewage provides about 33 percent to 40 percent of the sewage at CSD. This option was a request by the city of Carmel. However, water district general manager Bruce Buel said that there would be no increase in the sanitary district charges to its customers due to the new plant.

In a letter to the water district, the city of Carmel suggested that the district, rather than doing its own EIR, provide the information to CSD for the EIR on the entire project. Otherwise, the letter stated, the district could be in violation of the California Environmental Quality Act.

Water district urging conservation to save water

FIX THOSE leaks, use that bucket to wash cars and water plants, not driveways; those are the watchwords for water consumers on the peninsula as summer approaches.

With rainfall far behind normal for this time of year, the water supply is dropping while use is up by 20 percent over last March's figures, according to California-American Water Co.

The Monterey Peninsula Water Management District has refrained from imposing mandatory rationing measures until the effect of its water conservation program is clearer.

By March 31, businesses were required to reduce water consumption by one gallon per flush in toilets, install low-flow showerheads in motels and hotels and low-flow faucet aerators in sink fixtures.

Additionally, beginning in May, the water district will distribute free to about 40,000 residences, water conservation kits that include showerheads, toilet dams and aerators.

The Carmel Valley aquifer now is at approximately 81 percent full but increased use due to the dry weather could affect that supply.

Without a reduction in water consumption, the district may have to make mandatory many of the water conservation measures it has asked for voluntary compliance.

The voluntary and mandatory measures would be to ensure that if 1989 is also a drought year, the peninsula will be able to avoid the severe rationing measures employed in 1977.

Mayor, council to be sworn in CARMEL'S NEW mayor and two Carmel City Councilmembers will be officially sworn in at 4 p.m. Tuesday, April 19 at city hall.

Originally the ceremony had been scheduled for the theater at Sunset Center, but city officials felt that city hall, located at Ocean Avenue and Monte Verde Street, was more in keeping with Carmel's small-town image.

The Carmel Police Department will close Monte Verde Street between Ocean and Seventh avenues to traffic from noon until 5 p.m.

Along with the swearing in of the three newly elected seats during next week's meeting, the outgoing members of the council — Mayor Clint Eastwood and Councilman Bob Evans — will be given a citation of appreciation.

City council supports emergency service measure

By DAVID LELAND

AFTER RUMINATING for several months, the Carmel City Council last week went on record supporting a countywide ordinance which would coordinate emergency medical service.

Of the 12 cities in Monterey County, the only jurisdiction not in favor of the measure at presstime was Seaside.

In essence, the bill sets up a partnership between emergency providers — including public, private and volunteer — in conjunction with the Monterey County Emergency Care Committee and Emergency Medical Service Agency.

Bill Hill, assistant Carmel fire chief, said without the ordinance the county is in danger of losing it EMS Agency.

"We need the EMS Agency to coordinate training and the operations of all the components of the EMS system," said Hill, who works with the Carmel chapter of the American Red Cross in providing emergency service to Carmel, portions of Pebble Beach, Rio Road and the Carmel Highlands.

The EMS Agency was established as part of a state law in 1981 and serves as a subbranch of the county health department.

While some residents have expressed concerns that service could change if the measure is approved, Hill said that absolutely nothing would be altered with the passage of the ordinance and that free EMS would still be available from the Red Cross, as it has been for the past 50 years.

The issue is scheduled to come before the Monterey County Board of Supervisors at 3:15 p.m. Tuesday, April 19 in its chambers in the courthouse in Salinas.

One of the stumbling blocks, both for Carmel and other cities from within the county, has been the question of jurisdiction.

In other words, the cities were wary of allowing the county too much input in how each municipality should be run — both on the EMS issue and matters which may arise in the future.

Those fears could be allayed somewhat by the authors of the EMS ordinance having established regional councils, in an effort to promote communication between agencies and jurisdictions bound by the contract.

Carmel's regional council boundaries would include the communities of Mid-Valley, Carmel Valley, Cachagua, Pebble Beach, Carmel Highlands and Big Sur.

Among issues the regional councils would discuss are: a service provider for each area, minimum acceptable response time, methods of delivery (public or private), and financial impact upon citizens.

"I think this is a benefit to all of the citizens because they will have official input," said Hill, who added that the current ordinance represents three years of revisions and hard work. "Now we can talk about improving the level of EMS to all cities in the county. The ordinance is a vehicle for improving service."

ALONG WITH basic agreements which must be reached within each regional council, jurisdictions will also view matters indigenous to that region.

For Carmel, the immediate question arises whether residents want a higher level of service. In other words, do they want to upgrade from emergency medical technicians to paramedics?

If that is answered "Yes," the next step would be how to carry that out both on a funding and provider level.

"If the regional council feels that paramedics is a positive step, we now have the vehicle to look into that," said Hill.

EMTs are not allowed to dispense medicine to a patient and have less training than a paramedic, which is described by some as "having a doctor in your living room."

The important thing, say county EMS officials, is that Carmel will not be pushed into making a decision, but the latest information will be provided so at least the city can make an informed choice.

"I feel that paramedics are the standard of care throughout the nation," said Kim Donnelly, county EMS administrator, who added that the Emergency Medical Care Committee is currently preparing an educational program which will be offered to community groups sometime this summer.

Perhaps first and foremost in people's minds is the issue of money, or who would pay for the higher level of service?

"If they want to have it, we can find a way of funding," assured Donnelly.

One method of funding, currently being readied for an advisory vote on the November ballot, is an assessment district, sponsored by 4th District Supervisor Sam Karas.

Karas said the district would initially come before the Local Area Formation Commission (LAFCO), which would form an area to create revenue for improving medical service within the county.

Under the bill, each household would be assessed 2 cents a day, which would raise between $800,000 and $1 million annually, he said.

CURRENTLY THE board provides $250,000 from its general fund to emergency medical services. With the assessment district, that money would no longer be used for emergency services and would go back into the county's coffers.

Karas stressed that no community would be required to take part in the proposed assessment district, but those that do would have additional money for emergency services.

"This benefits them (cities) so they can do a better job," he said, adding that the money will be dispersed in a democratic fashion.

"All the funds generated will be allocated," he said. "There will be a countywide task force composed of residents and jurisdictions. Everyone will have a say in how the money is spent."

City council moves to restrict new second story building

THE CARMEL City Council moved quickly to stop new second story development permitted under the former code by adopting on proposed design code changes as an urgency ordinance.

The April 5th action suspends an application by Ted and Bob Leidig to place apartments over the Village Corner restaurant and its adjoining buildings on the corner of Dolores Street and Sixth Avenue. It also blocks another application by the Leidigs for two aparments over Fortier's Drugstore, corner of Ocean Avenue and Dolores Street.

The council approved the new design and coverage requirements because waiting for a first and second reading of the new ordinance would leave a legal gap between the former and proposed code.

The council, however, removed a section of the new code that mandates any new second story development be for residential use only.

The ordinance will receive its first reading in May, and if approved by the new council, its second reading in June. After 30 days it will become law.

The new ordinance imposes more restrictive building coverage and setbacks for new construction. The provisions include:

- Setbacks for second stories must average 30 percent of the depth of the building site.

The ordinance uses the average setback approach because it allows for a greater variety of design.

- Permits 70 percent building for two-story buildings and 80 percent coverage for one-story buildings to encourage construction of single-story structures. The former ordinance allowed 75 percent and 85 percent respectively.
- Formalizes the use of floor area ratios and reduces floor area permitted to 90 percent of building site. Permits floor area to be utilized on either first or second story.
- Reduces height limitations from 30 feet to 26 feet. Allowances are made for pitched roofs.
- Increased landscaping requirements to 40 percent of required open space of the building site for both residential and commercial developments. The change would mandate landscaping range from 12 percent to 17 percent of building site. The remainder of the open space can be pathways, parking pads and other unplanted areas.
- Incentives to build courtyards, passageways and other traditional village architectural elements.

TAKE MY WORD FOR IT

By D. Patrick Gallagher

The Reason. Why?

GEORGE BUSH began his umpteenth explanation of his position on Iran-Contra with, "The reason why I didn't speak out.." Oops! It's an error made often in informal speech, but one which we ought to be able to avoid.

If it is wrong to say "the reason why," why then is the esteemed Alfred Lord Tennyson permitted in his famous poem, The Charge of the Light Brigade, to write "Their's not to reason why, there's but to do and die?" In this case, the reason (not "the reason why") has nothing to do with poetic license or the fact that why rhymes with die. Tennyson is grammatically correct.

"Reason" is both a noun and a verb. Tennyson was of course using the verb, to reason (why), where as the noun stands alone; the reason. Reason as a verb is intransitive, meaning it requires no direct object (although, as in many verbs, this can change depending upon how it is used). Therefore why in Tennyson's case is not the object of reason, but poetic shorthand for, "Why the hell are we here and why the hell are we making this idiotic charge?" but, as we can plainly see, this disturbs, ever so slightly, the meter of the couplets.

When reason is a noun it is properly followed by for, is, or sometimes which or that, but never because or why. The reason is, because and why are redundant (not "the reason is because because and why are redundant" and certainly not "the reason why is because because and why are redundant). These are well established and accepted rules of grammar which, one might expect, would put to rest all arguments to the contrary. Think again.

Enter the Linguistics Department of Cornell University and assistant professor of linguistics, E.W. Browne III who asserts that the combination of the reason with why is "both well attested in English literature and in keeping with the grammar of English relative clauses." His references are to Bartlett's Familiar Quotations and a poem by Robert Stephen Hawker (1825), as well as two epigrams by Tom Brown (1695), who, presumably, was not taught to reason why during his school days, and Henry Aldrich (1675), who apparently and much later gave up epigrams for radio. The reason, we do not know.

The first of these justifications by the learned professor as to the reason that reason and why can be so joined is less a matter of good grammar than pure poetic necessity,

And shall Trelawney die?
Here's twenty thousand Cornishmen
Will know the reason why.

Poor Trelawney would have had to die of treason to rhyme this gramatically. The professor's second reference has the same basis for its improper grammar,

If all be true that I do think,
There are five reasons we should drink:
Good wine-a friend-or being dry-
Or lest we should be by and by-
Or any other reason why.

However noble the sentiment, this too is poetic license and hardly a foundation for arguing against good grammar. The final example from Assistant Professor Browne, III reads,

I do not love thee, Doctor Fell
The reason why I cannot tell;
But this love alone I know full well,
I do not love thee, Doctor Fell.

We're not told whether the speaker's lack of amorous intention was a gastric problem related to green eggs and ham, but I know that the good professor's poor justification for bad grammar is indigestible. Strict adherence to the reason/why rule (if we insisted upon such adherence in poetic endeavors) would, Professor Browne, III insists, force the restructuring of the epigram thusly.

I do not love thee, Doctor Fell
The reason for which I do not love thee,
I cannot tell.

Not quite. How about,

I do not love thee, Doctor Fell
for reasons which I cannot tell.

Poets, fortunately, write from the heart and not from guides to good grammar. For the rest of us, however, reason as a noun ought not to be followed by why, guides to contemporary American use(age) be damned.

I WILL admit to a soft spot for one violation of what I have just said. It is "I know of no reason why he should oppose me." One could say, "I know of no reason he should oppose me" and there is, of course, the far simpler and correct, "I don't know why he opposes me," but while brevity and simplicity are the goals in good English, there are occasions when poetic flair is music to the ear. Mutatis mutandis.

CARMEL HERITAGE

By Betty Barron

By Candlelight... A return engagement

I HAVE had, perhaps, a dozen calls and comments regarding the fire at the Golden Bough, and I thank all of you who have expressed theories and named names. However, all this was buried long ago and cannot be revived today. Suffice to say, theater did not die in Carmel. The following is the story of its struggle and revival.

SPECULATION RAN rampant in the little village after the devastating fire that destroyed the Theatre of the Golden Bough. Although arson was quite conclusively established, as in the recent burning of the little Tuck Box, the prime suspect was never arrested. To this day, the Golden Bough fire is an unsolved mystery.

The play, By Candelight, the last production in the theater, was presumably laid to rest on the ashes of the burned building. Ted Kuster was not to be so easily stilled. He at once began plans for another theater. He refused to acknowledge the "obituary" in the Pacific Weekly: "The Golden Bough fire wrote tragedy across something that is, or was, the core of Carmel, and I wonder if the last vestige of the dream of those who first came here and settled in the pines, is not gone with the going of the Golden Bough."

But, Kuster had come to Carmel when Ocean Avenue was a rutty, unpaved street, flood water carving deep gashes along the "curbs," a hand-pump fire engine drawn along the street by men. On the day the Golden Bough burned, the fire truck was a fire engine, evidence tht the village was growing and improving. That day Kuster decided to renew his pledge to keep theater in Carmel alive. And so began another Theatre of the Golden Bough.

Said Küster, "I didn't stop to argue with the 'obituary.' I had to get busy. I had a little insurance, which I used to fit out the small Monte Verde Street Playhouse with the best motion picture equipment on the market. I launched it as the Filmarte and it was the first art movie house between Los Angeles and San Francisco. In the meantime I opened a small elegant little theater on Sutter Street in San Francisco and called it the Golden Bough Playhouse."

Kuster also put in two seasons of teaching and directing theater in Hollywood. He returned to Carmel in 1940, and took over the Filmarte, renaming it the Golden Bough Playhouse. For nine years he operated it profitably as a combination house, producting stage plays on Monday nights and showing art movies the other nights.

IN APRIL 1949, Lloyd Weer, one of Kuster's guest directors at the Golden Bough Playhouse, suggested that they repeat By

HALF-TIME CLERK ADDED TO LOCAL POSTAL SERVICE

"Half a loaf is better than no bread." Postmistress Stella J. Vincent received advices from Washington on Wednesday morning to the effect than an appropriation had been allowed sufficient to permit of the employment of an extra clerk for half a day every day.

Already Miss Vincent has arranged for the re-employment of Miss Nash. During the absence of Mrs. Grace Wickham on her vacation, Mrs. Theresa Ratliff will be one of the clerks in the office.

SEA OTTERS TO GET PROTECTION

The California State Fish and Game Commission are making efforts to appoint a body of men whose sole duties will be to patrol the coast in order to prevent illegal taking of sea otters.

Long thought to be extinct, sea otters have been sighted in the surf just off Rainbow Bridge. Approximately 400 of these animals whose pelts are valued as high as ermine and sable were sighted as recently as two weeks ago. Heavy penalties await anyone killing a sea otter, as it is hoped that they will live unmolested in California waters and continue to breed.

RESERVE STRENGTH

To keep the lid on the riotous impulses which generate on the beach and along the avenues during the week preceding Easter, Police Chief Clyde Klaumann last week called up six members of the newly formed Police Reserve.

The effectiveness of their uniformed beach patrols afoot, the two-officer crews they made possible in the police cars, and rapid desk work in the station is borne out by Klaumann's conclusion that the period was one of the smoothest and quietest in recent years.

The volunteers served an aggregate of over two hundred hours during the seven-day period, hours which would have represented over $500 in overtime wages for the regular officers.

THIRSTY BARK BEETLES HAVE KILLED MORE THAN 90 PINES IN CARMEL

The record-setting drought of 1977 is still taking its toll despite a wet winter and spring. At least 91 Monterey Pines in Carmel are known to have died from drought-caused beetle infestations, according to City Forester Gregory D'Ambrosio. More may have died. D'Ambrosio only has a count on trees the city maintains.

Ips and red turpentine beetles caused the deaths. The tiny winged pests, no more than a third of an inch long, burrowed under the bark in search of moisture. They penetrated to the cambrium layer that circulates water and nutrients for the tree.

VALLEY LEARNS HOW TO COPE WITH REARRANGED LANDSCAPE

Carmel Valley is searching for "creative ways" to deal with the inconveniences caused by a landslide that has bisected the Valley.

The slide closed Carmel Valley Road April 4 and has changed the daily habits of thousands of residents who live east of the slide. The slide covered Carmel Valley Road in one of the narrowest portions of the Valley, about one-half mile east of Scarlett Road.

A one-lane detour road opened Tuesday in an effort to handle commute traffic.

But the "overwhelming" dimension of the landslide and the "staggering" costs of clearing the road have prevented Monterey County officials from estimating when normal two-way traffic can resume.

At the same time, the $200,000 home owned by psychiatrist Peter Harding sits atop the landslide like a maraschino cherry on a slow-melting sundae.

Candlelight. Lloyd Weer was one of Carmel's foremost actors, and had been the leading man in the original production of By Candelight the night of the fire.

Kuster and Weer reassembled the entire cast of the first By Candlelight and started rehearsals. There were two exceptions. Ruth Warshawsky replaced Barbara Collins Norberg, and a Mrs. von Urban took over the role played by Jeanne Monteagle (Mrs. Gallatin Powers).

"There was quite a hullaballoo in town," recalled Kuster. "Many, many people told us, sometimes laughingly, sometimes seriously, that we were tempting fate, providence and 'what have you' to dare to put on the play again. But, we laughed off all the warnings. My son, Colin, then 18, reminded me that Carmel had become a haven for all sorts of eccentrics and crackpots and that it would be easy for one of them to get the idea that it would be highly dramatic and amusing if the warnings came true. I ignored Colin's warnings also...and went right on with rehearsals. We performed the play before a full house on Monday night, May 17 , 1949.

"In the early hours of the following morning I heard, as in a dream, heavy knocking at our door and the barking of our dogs. It was a group of friends with news that once more the Golden Bough had been destroyed."

By Candlelight had again been destroyed. What was the cause of the second burning of the Golden Bough? Was it in some way connected with he play itself? Was it a plot more devious than any conceived by the writer, the director, the producer? Or was it merely an accident...a coincidence?

From every part of the country words of sympathy and hope poured in to the Kuster family. "It was such a civilized theater," said the San Francisco Examiner.

However, an offshoot of the Golden Bough, the Circle Theatre, built in 1952 just below on Casanova Street, continued to attract the theater-conscious Carmelites as well as visitors from the San Francisco Bay Area. Theater had not entirely died in Carmel. As Kuster said, "The mystic golden branch has withered away in an uncongenial climate, and it will perish not through the violence of the two fires, but through the chill and lack of interest and understanding of Carmel's new 'public.' I agree that every community will ultimately achieve the level of theater which best suits it and which it deserves."

With that, Kuster challenged Carmel to retain theater and support the Circle Theatre through its perilous first years. He felt that the theater attracted the intelligent, the sensitive, the industrious, the unselfish and the cooperative and, in general, men and women of mental, moral and aesthetic integrity. He was not to be deterred by those who did not have the courage to pursue artistic goals in spite of discordant elements and disasters such as fire and financial problems.

Theater did not burn itself out and die in Carmel as present day residents can attest to, partly due to the foresight and tenacity of Ted Kuster and his determined cast.

SAAB'S INNOVATIVE TECHNOLOGY AND ENGINEERING PROWESS START AT AROUND $15,000 AND DON'T STOP UNTIL ABOUT $20 MILLION.

The idea of "shared technology" has a long history at Saab. In fact, the first Saab cars weren't even conceived by automotive engineers, they were designed by aircraft engineers. All of which helps explain why Saabs have always been known for their innovative approach. Innovations such as one of the first uses of turbocharging in a standard production car. One of the earliest applications of 16-valve cylinder head technology and front-wheel drive. Dual-diagonal braking. Energy-absorbing, collapsible steering columns. And most recently, the addition of an ABS antilock braking system to all Saab 9000's. But to experience this technology in a far more moving fashion we suggest you visit us soon. Where the entire 1988 model line (unfortunately, minus the supersonic Saab JA-37 Viggen) awaits your inspection.

The Long View

WE HAVEN'T heard much from Leo lately. Since Meltdown Monday, he's forsaken the stock market to concentrate on his real estate projects. Before The Crash he was an avid player in The Market.

If he read something interesting while on a coast-to-coast flight, immediately the next day he'd want to buy stock in the company he'd read about. It didn't matter to him that literally thousands of others had read the same article in the same airline magazine on the same day. To him it was hot news, a tip.

And he never played with small stakes. He insisted on taking big positions, what a more chauvinistic era might have called very manly positions. Thousands and thousands of shares at a crack, on a whim.

We never encouraged this recklessness. When you like someone you do business with, you hate to see them waste their money.

"You guys are too conservative," he'd say. "I don't have time to wait for your ideas to work. I know I'll make money if I practice patience, but that's not what I want."

As you might have guessed, Leo did not fare well when the Market took its swan dive last year. To put it mildly, he went down in flames. Wiped out.

He went back to working harder at his business. He's a developer of both commercial and residential real estate in the Bay Area. His projects are large, requiring massive injections of capital. Sometimes the financing can get quite complex.

Lately, however, he has had no luck. All the lending institutions have been turning him down. He has a great project to develop in San Francisco, in the heart of one of the better turnaround neighborhoods in the City.

No go. No one wants to take the chance. Things are too uncertain. Every bank, every savings and loan, sees the project as too risky. So sorry, but no can do.

Last week he called.

"Hey, you guys, I finally got my financing. The money's coming from Japan. The Japanese figured they couldn't lose. They said it made sense to invest in San Francisco real estate because they're in it for the long haul. Thirty years is no big deal if the real estate is solid."

Thirty years is no big deal, they said. When Leo invested in the stock market he couldn't wait thirty days.

Is there something wrong here in this story? The Japanese can wait for an investment to work out as long as the fundamentals are solid. Their stock market is booming on just that principle. They're in it for the long haul.

Patience is an investment principle. Today it's made in Japan.

Sunlit garden setting for MPVS luncheon

THE SUN-DAPPLED garden of Mrs. Robert Surtees' home in Carmel was once again the setting for the annual luncheon for the Monterey Peninsula Volunteer Services members and their husbands.

The once-a-year social gathering has been an autumn affair, usually, but this spring Maydell Surtees planteed some 400 tulips and asked members to celebrate with her on April 7th.

Luncheon guests were welcomed by sunshine, soft music by Tony Flores and Joe Weed, and baskets of buffet lunch items catered by 5th Avenue Deli.

At dessert-time, Olga Scheffler (first vice president and chairwoman of the luncheon), announced another bonus. A fashion show with '88 spring styles from Harriet Duncan of Carmel. Mrs. Scheffler introduced Joan Peacock, who did fashion commentary (with eight MPVS members serving as models). Treading the garden path (instead of a runway), in a professional manner were Lorelie Brock, Eugenia Dujmovich, Kay Wilson, Mary Gannon, Marion Harris, Holly Morehouse, Dorothy Reiter and Marjorie Mann.

At the end of the show, Pernie McMahon (owner of Harriet Duncan), appeared in a beautiful flower-print dress and drew numbers for the raffle prizes. Gift certificates from Harriet Duncan were won by Amy Allen and Christine Shuler.

Edan Denholm, (president of MPVS), drew tickets for the grand raffle prize. She called several numbers before she found a winner for the lovely afghan created by Cleo Rupp with yarn that came from the Thrift Shop that MPVS volunteers run all year long in Seaside. Ann Blythe held the lucky ticket.

More than 40 tables were set up in the garden and the front patio (that overlooks Point Lobos), for the 140 members, their husbands and guests. Holly and Irve Morehouse, Jean and Sam Houston and Dorothy and Glenn Reiter did the set-up and decorations. Glenn also made a videotape of the fashion show.

Past presidents who attended were Claire Kennedy, Jane Hardy, Barbara Lyle, Ruth Blanchard, Kay Wilson (who modeled) and Ann Marshall, who announced the next Carmel Valley Garden Club show to be held May 1 at Hidden Valley.

HERE'S HOW to give a surprise birthday party for your mate. Have him go to KNRY Radio to be interviewed at 4 p.m. by Pearl Williams while you dash into his place of business and welcome friends with champagne, hors d'oeuvres, and birthday cake.

That's what Nicole Duffel did.

Then, as the radio interview ended, she asked Pearl to tell Gary (Nicole's husband), that his friends were waiting back at the office to wish him a Happy 50th Birthday. Voila!

That way, all goes smoothly and it's a surprise (well, almost).

Mrs. Edna Daniel, a guest at Gary's party, was also celebrating a birthday, so Gary presented her with a corsage.

Hors d'oeuvres, fruit, champagne and birthday cake certainly beats the usual day at Great Western in Carmel where Gary is general manager.

THE TWO TEA tables for the Monterey Library League Tea were refreshing spring themes. Patterns of lavender and blue delphiniums decorated the white tablecloths that were bordered with lavender taffeta moire ribbon. Centerpieces were fresh, long-stemmed ranunculaceous plants (delphiniums) sparkled by a large, deep-colored amethyst gem placed at the base. A striking conversation piece, indeed.

A large pink and blue cake read "Thanks — Outreach Docents." It was surrounded by dainty sandwiches served with History and Art Association Tea.

Such were the artistic displays by Kitty Ragsdale, founder of the Monterey Public Library League and chairperson of the Spring Tea to honor Outreach Docents. Mary Rodrigues did the program.

A special honor was given to Mary, organizer of the Outreach Program that delivers books to those who are homebound. Outreach Docent volunteers come from all over the peninsula — Carmel, Pebble Beach, Pacific Grove and Monterey. Certificates of Merit were given to Evelyn Hesse (five years) Carol Burnau, Kathleen Boardman, Mari Badong, Marjorie Stowers and Abe Alpert.

FATHER FARRELL'S WISDOM

God governs in the affairs of man

Carmel Pine Cone
Jan. 21, 1982

When the city of Monterey was only 17 years old, 195 years ago, that incredible American, 80 years old, Benjamin Franklin, spoke at the Constitutional Convention.

"The longer I live, the more convincing proofs I see in this truth, that God governs in the affairs of men. And if a sparrow cannot fall to the ground without His notice, is it probable that an empire can rise without His aid?

We have been assured in Sacred Writings that 'except the Lord, build the House, they labor in vain that build it.' firmly believe this; and I also believe that without His concuring aid, we shall succeed in this political building no better than the builders of Babel; we shall be divided by our little partial, local interest and our projects will be confounded." Later he said, "This government can only end in despotism, as others have done before when the people shall become so corrupted as to need despotic government, being incapable of any other."

Some 60-odd years ago when I was a lad, Carmel had one policeman, Chief Gus Englund. He and his horse were as cherished as that Lone Cypress. Today, there are more crimes committed in Carmel in a week than were committed in the whole of Monterey County in a year, a half a century ago. With justifiable concern we ask what has happened when we cannot walk our streets in safety by day or by night? It has become more dangerous to leave our barred and burglar-proofed homes than it was for the early settlers to leave Ft. Apache during Geronimo's wildest depredations.

Oh, Lord grant us whatever it takes to bring peace, order, safety and tranquility to our troubled communities and nation. Help us to reform every facet of government without reverting to despotism which Benjamin Franklin tells us is inevitable unless we curb corruption. Finally, apropos to nothing except that Benjamin Franklin proposed that our national bird be the turkey, we repeat the words emblazoned on a Christmas T-shirt "It's hard to soar like an eagle when you're living with turkeys."

The Golden Years

By Myles Williams

The newly discovered chemical, aminoguanidine, must undergo years of testing before it can be labeled effective and safe for humans, but researchers at Rockefeller University are confident that the drug will one day help to prolong the lives of some people who otherwise would die prematurely. Scientists believe it will eventually be used to combat such problems as cardiovascular disease, blindness, and loss of kidney, muscle and nerve functions common in people with advanced diabetes, and among the elderly.

The National Institute on Aging conducted a study to "investigate the extent to which commercial restaurants function to integrate or segregate the elderly and other age groups in an urban community." After two years of research, it was concluded that seniors go out to eat because they enjoy being around other people, and that there was no evidence of restaurant discrimination against the elderly.

PASSING NOTES

Resolution

COMMUNICATION IS one of the buzzwords of our time. But despite computers and Xerox machines, telephones and Federal Express, communication sometimes fails, causing problems and misunderstandings, even an occasional revolution.

The CHS campus is no exception to this condition. Over the past month, everyone has been arguing about the '88 Prom, but few people have had all of the information. It is a great tribute to both the students and administration of CHS that we were finally able to listen to each other. We have all learned the importance of being receptive and respectful, regardless of strong feelings.

For the readers who have absolutely no idea what I'm talking about, I'll recap the situation. The administration decided that the '88 Prom should be a dinner-dance, where students would have to pay $25 per person to eat a buffet banquet meal at the Hyatt Regency in the room where the dance would subsequently be held. The students were strongly opposed to this, both because of the price and its restriction on our options. There were petitions signed by the students. Preliminary planning of an alternative prom, where a room and band would be privately arranged, began. A confrontation seemed inevitable and, due to poor communication, each side found itself in a difficult position.

It became apparent that the final decision was in the hands of Ms. Marie Ishida, our principal. A two-page proposal was formulated by members of the student body and a lunchtime meeting between all concerned students and the administration was held. The next day, Ms. Ishida issued a special bulletin, acknowledging the responsible manner in which we handled the situation. Basing her decision on a new mutual respect and understanding, she rewarded us with a non-dinner 1988 Prom.

Now it is the students' turn to reward the administration for trusting and responding to us. We must behave with maturity and responsibility. We thank CHS for the opportunity it has given us to learn and grow in a way which will serve us well in the future as members of a society filled with tough decisions and compromises. We have discovered the power of communication.

OTHER ITEMS Of interest: A second School Beautification Day has been planned for Saturday, April 16 from 9 a.m. to noon. The campus is looking better than ever. We hope to see lots of parents and students come out for a fun day of gardening, painting, and such.

CHS is currently on spring break. When we return to class on Monday, there will be only nine weeks until senior graduation. It's exciting and frightening at the same time when the days go by so quickly and the future seems much closer than it used to.

Historic La Mirada estate opened for spring garden tour

"MEMORIES of La Mirada" will be the theme of this year's spring flower and horticulture show to be given by the Carmel-by-the-Sea Garden Club at the historic La Mirada adobe in Monterey on Friday, April 15.

The event will be held for the public from 1 to 4 p.m. The admission charge is $6.

This furnished and adobe was the home of Jose Castro, one of the most prominent men in California during the Mexican period. In 1849, Jessie Benton Fremont, the wife of Gen. John C. Fremont, occupied two rooms in the adobe, often entertaining delegates to the California Constitutional Convention in the adjoining gardens.

In 1919, the adobe was purchased by Gouverneur Morris, descendant of the Revolutionary war figure of the same name. In the 1930s it passed into the hands of the T.A. Work family, and in 1946 it became the home of their son, Frank Work, who several years ago gave it and its priceless furnishings to the Monterey Peninsula Museum of Art. It is now maintained as an adjunct to the museum.

The adobe gardens will be at the height of their beauty for the April flower show. Dozens of rare rhodendrons, azaleas and other flowers will be in bloom, as will prize specimens in the rose garden.

Floral decorations representing various periods of the adobe's history will be featured, with prizes awarded for the most outstanding displays. The horticultural section will feature the most notable specimens from various periods of California history.

"La Mirada," formerly known as the Castro-Work adobe, is located at 720 Via Mirada in Monterey, just off Fremont Boulevard.

The Carmel-by-the-Sea Garden Club is an affiliate of the Garden Club of America.

Nevada Dance Theater performs at Sunset Center

ON SATURDAY, April 16, at 8 p.m., the Nevada Dance Theater will close the 1987-88 Festival of Dance Series at Sunset Theater in Carmel.

From one man's vision in the desert, Nevada Dance Theater was born. With the help of a few dedicated dancers, Sulich's dream became what has been called "the cultural jewel" of the state of Nevada. Nevada Dance Theater has emerged from this dream to become a professional ballet company receiving national recognition.

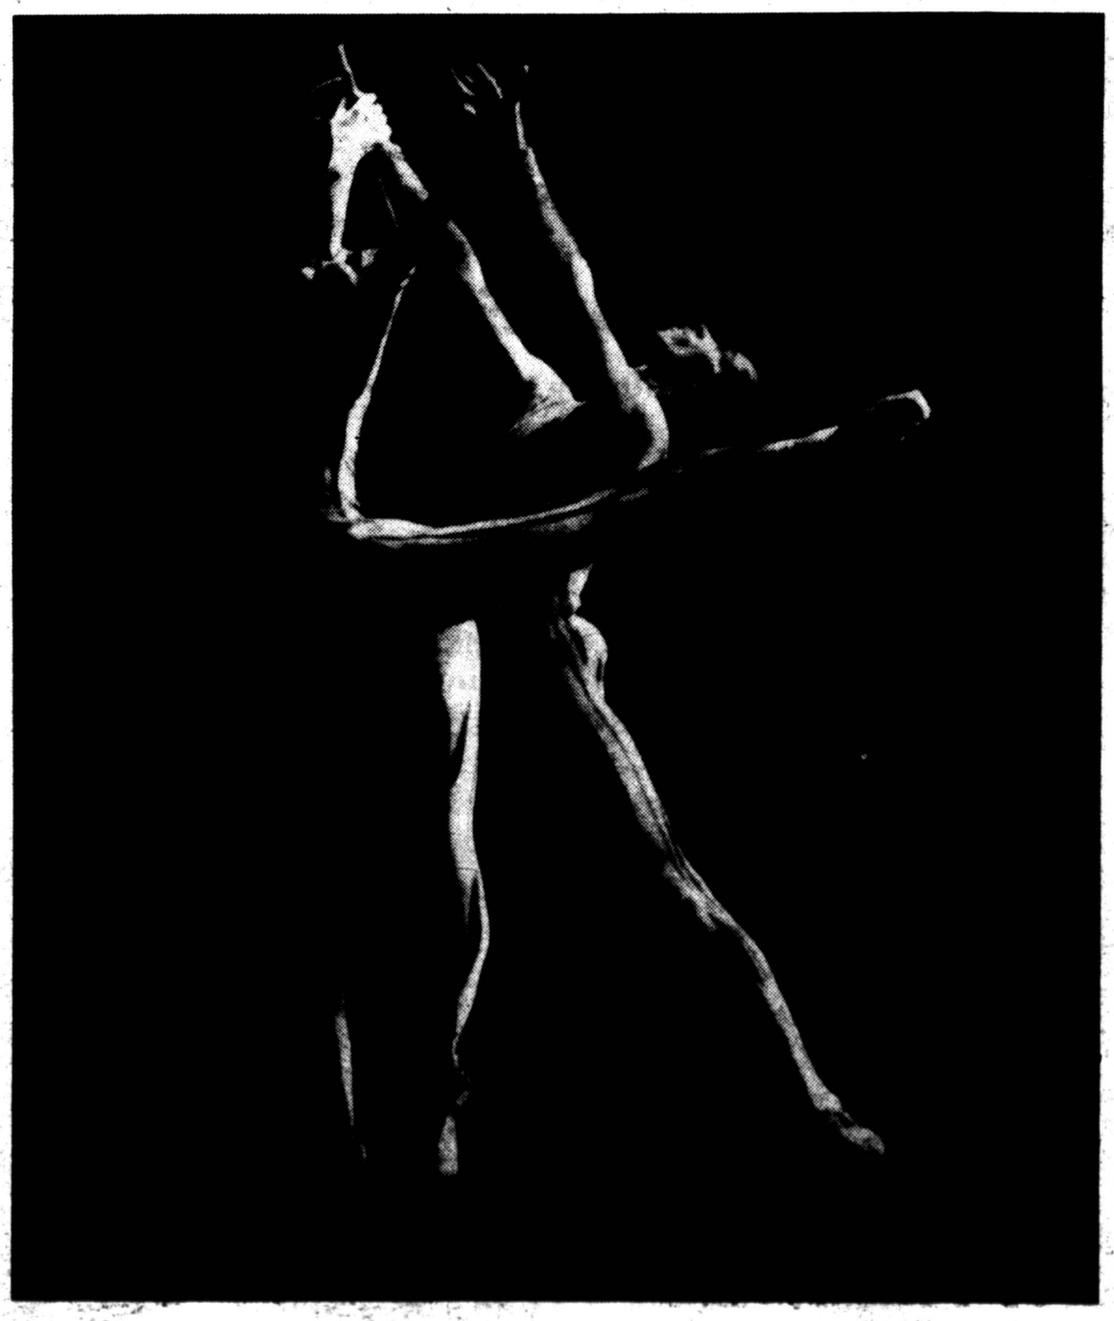
Sulich has created quality ballet presentations with wide audience appeal. His choreography has been presented at the Geneva Opera, Lyon Opera, Teatro Colon in Buenos Aires, and received critical acclaim at the International Ballet Competitions in Varna, Bulgaria and Moscow. Sulich starred with many of the leading ballet companies in Europe, including Roland Petit's Ballet de France, where he partnered Ludmilla Tcherina and Zizi Jeanmaire.

The San Francisco Opera has commissioned Sulich to choreograph the ballet sequences for Queen of Spades, La Gioconda, Boris Godunov, Adriana Lecroubrer and Eugene Onegin.

In 1984, the Royal New Zealand Ballet and Ballet Eddy Toussaint de Montreal added two Sulich ballets to their repertoire. Critics in both countries praised his work.

Every year he is invited to teach master classes at dance conventions in the United States and Europe. Sulich's strong classical background has given the company its profile. Their varied repertoire ranges from classical, to contemporary and dramatic, even humorous works — truly something for everyone.

Tickets at $10 and $8 are available. All seats are reserved. For more information please call the director's office at Sunset Center, 624-3996.



THE NEVADA Dance Theater is the final ensemble to perform in the 1987-88 Festival of Dance Series at Carmel's Sunset Theater. JAZZ TIDES

By John Detro

Jack's younger double

BEHIND HIS crisp and assertive words — they rather rush like a boxcar or Sierra creek — this shy streak persists. It completes the jarring picture. Happily, Jack's younger double has a better handle on survival.

Fame broke novelist Jack Kerouac's essentially innocent spirit. And so he dug his own grave with a shot glass. Cousin Paul (Jack lookalike and soundalike) has been on the musician's road since age 17. And now 35-year-old Paul has come here with electric bass and guitar — to wait out his ladylove's healing process and then make music.

Acoustic bassist Bryan McConnell made the introduction. Paul and I chatted just before the B Natural Trio — Bryan, drummer/vocalist Roland Allen, Jim Healey at the Yamaha electric grand and DX7 — kicked off their gig in the Hyatt Regency's Whispers Lounge the other night.

"I met Bryan at Spanish Bay," Paul said. "Good cat. He's been handing over casuals that would have caused schedule conflicts for him. And I'm building a new sound system for the trio. For the past five years, I've been playing the casino circuit in Reno with people like (several names of heavyweight stars). Monstrous party folks. I watched all that for a long time. The party thing can murder the music. For me, the music comes first. Then, too, my lady's here."

Vocalist Linda Lukenis was working so much that her doctor ordered a long vacation to repair blown pipes. Paul: "When the time's right, we'll organize a jazz-based group with horns and voices. For my last band, I wrote and arranged four-part harmonies. We'll put out the word through your column and work up the same thing here."

Did he get to know Jack very well? "Sure," Paul replied. "We both grew up in Lowell (Mass.) and he made it back home. We hung out together. Jack loved to play piano — and was one of the kindest people I've met. You know he was a fine athlete (Columbia University football scholarship before an injury brought him low) so playing ball was a big thing with us. I started on piano; he enjoyed that. He'd sit in clubs and write along with the jazz — he got its sound onto paper."

JAZZ. The trio had begun. Members work in tandem easily, having first got together in Oklahoma about five years ago. Bryan established a home locally — a first-rate reputation — then made the key phone calls. Rehearsals for the latest incarnation began with the new year.

B Natural Trio has developed a solid book — Blues, ballads, Latin things. Jim's a thoughtful, Jarrett-influenced workman who seems most comfortable with the jazz waltz and Brazilian thrust. The group's creative tension rises from Bryan and old pro Roland pulling and daring Jim into harder grooves. The dynamic: John Lewis and Milt Jackson but in reverse. Jim laughs a little — and responds. They achieve some happy hybrids — funk waltz, Latinesque field holler.

Roland's poise puts him in a class with Eddie Moore and Smiley Winters. As vocalist, he picks purist ballads (such as Autumn Leaves) and nails them cold. Solid baritone. Phrases like Jug from Chicago — tenorman Gene Ammons.

The trio will be part of a free concert at Monterey Peninsula College on Sunday, April 24. Also on the bill: MPC student jazz ensemble and vocalist Ferdie Baje (whose backup group includes Don Schamber on piano). Kicks off at 4 p.m. That same night, the threesome will work the Hyatt Regency's Cafe Monterey.

ELSEWHERE, the Santa Cruz duo called Max and Mona (electric guitar and largely scat vocals respectively) played their first gig at the downtown Sheraton's Monterey Bay Club on April 5. Mona studied with Mark Murphy and has a husky, pretty bottom to her Bobby McFerrin/Manhattan Transfer flights. The simplicity of their approach serves the lyric well. The addition of a tasteful brush drummer (Andy Weis comes to mind as a standard) would resolve some questions about division of silence between the two. Well worth hearing. At the same venue April 19.

Next night. Monterey Bay Club. John Cortes Quartet. John picked up his soprano saxophone (he brings four horns to every gig) for a slow Blues of great beauty. Bassist Stan Poplin dug deep and evoked the late Scotty LaFaro on more than one ballad. ("An early influence," Stan said later with that wild Huck Finn grin.) As it stands right now, this group could play any jazz room in the land. (On May 21 I'll be producing and hosting a two-hour Special for KRML Jazz Radio. Spring Thing: Jazz Festival of the Air. It's a celebration of Monterey Bay Area talent — Cortes, Poplin, pianist John Donaldson, vocalist Peggy Nesbitt with keyboardist Scott Brown, Papa Jake, Smith Dobson, one student group, Don Schamber charts, Paul Contos, Jan Denceau, on and on.)

THEATER REVIEW

By Joe Guzaitis

A fool and his money

THE STAFF PLAYERS of the Indoor Forest Theater have opened Moliere's The Miser. Written in 1668, this is a tale of a skinflint named Harpagon who scrimps on every possible household and social expense in order to be able to run his fingers through his gold coins at night. Money to him has become an end in itself. However, the miser is not a sordid character. He is capable of enjoying humor and gives us many laughs as well: that's where Moliere's genius comes in.

There are many situations designed to elicit that laughter. The most amusing center around Harpagon's son and daughter and their respective marriage plans. Also, when the miser is separated from his money, his character alters and we are treated to another dimension of the man.

Michael Robbins is so marvelously cast as Harpagon that it's a pleasure to watch him even when he's just standing still. He's made up like a burgher in an old Flemish painting, in black with white lace at the neck, wrists, and below the knees. At first he appears quite striking. Then you notice that his cap is ripped and the lace is torn in places and you see what his self-imposed penury has brought him to. He stalks the stage with a wild-eyed glare. He chortles and moans. He exclaims and grimaces. He does bits of business that we haven't seen before.

Other notable performances include that of Darrin Larson as Valere, Major Domo to Harpagon. His bearing is regal and his actions almost those of a swashbuckler. He sweeps across the stage as he makes a point in an argument. He disputes with great gestures. Frosine, the marriage broker, is played by Janice O'Brien with great grace and charm. Her diction and bearing add dignity to any scene she's in.

Michael Purcell plays Cleante and Connie Ericson plays Elise, son and daughter of Harpagon. Each has fallen in love with someone but both are reluctant to reveal that fact to their father. They capture well the anguish and fear of those who live under the irrational dictates of another. Bob Faul as Harpagon's cook/coachman gives us a glimpse of the tribulations of those "downstairs" having to make do on the miser's allotments.

There are too many roles to acknowledge individually: the servants, however, were amusing as they reacted to the actions of the "upper class." The duffer noblemen were also amusing as they strutted in their outlandish garb.

Marcia Gambrell Hovick directs much of the play well. There were, however, some broad gestures that bordered on the burlesque and, to my mind, didn't belong. There was also a mismatch between, for instance, the intense dialogues between Harpagon and his son and, on the other hand, things like servants whirling about the stage for no apparent reason. Much of the play seems to have been converted to a "modern" style while some of the old slapstick touches seem to remain.

Loel Schuler's costumes were very good. In addition to Harpagon's fine garb, the noblewomen's gowns were lovely although I'm not sure all of them are historically accurate. The noblemen, however, did seem to have the Louis XIV look.

Scene design is by Norman Stottmeister, a renowned actor in his own right. His Louis XIV minimalist interior wall treatment, however, reminded me of an underpass with poorly removed graffitti stains. Otherwise, there was the right kind of old stuff around and they money box was very convincing Louis XIV.

The Miser runs Thursdays through Saturdays at 8 p.m. and Sundays at 2:30 p.m. at the Indoor Forest Theater, Mountain View and Santa Rita, Carmel.

THE MISTREATED children of The Miser console themselves in this Staff Players Repertory Company production. Connie Erickson portrays Elise and Michael Purcell is Cleante in this classic by Moliere. The play continues at the Indoor Forest Theater in Carmel. For ticket information, call 624-1531.

MUSIC CORNER

By Nathalie Plotkin

James Welch pulls out all the stops

IN A CONCERT titled "James Welch Pulls Out All the Stops," the popular Santa Barbara organist was heard last Sunday afternoon performing in the First United Methodist Church of Pacific Grove. One had to be a true devotee of the instrument to attend a recital on such a lovely afternoon, but it was well worth it.

For some reason, organists are chatty types. There is only one I can think of locally who doesn't feel it necessary to make introductory remarks and then keep commenting on what comes next. Possibly it is because the pipe organ, due to its size and technical requirements, could never become a parlor fixture. Also, teachers are not easily available even if one has access to an instrument to practice on.

Another point is that the repertoire for the organ, while it is large, and modern organ composers seem to be quite prolific so that it keeps growing, is never on the classical "Top Forty."

Mr. Welch belongs to the expository school of performers, but does it with a light touch and his remarks are brief and pointed. He began with a Prelude and Fugue by Vincent Luebeck, who was a contemporary influence on J.S. Bach. The music is bright and lively and Mr. Welch emphasized Luebeck's stated intention to entertain by bringing out the lightness and rhythmic swing of the composition.

J.S. Bach's "Trio Sonata No. 2 in C Minor" followed. This is one of a set written as training exercises for his eldest son Wilhelm Friedemann Bach. The player makes up the trio all by himself. His right hand is used as one instrument, the left as the second while his feet play basso continuo. The sonata is an excellent exercise for developing precision and complete independence for the performer's two hands and feet and the artist met this challenge in true virtuoso style, but also brought sweetness and appeal to his interpretation.

The next five pieces were set up as an imaginary church service for the Queen of England. Thalben-Ball's "Elegy" was a reflective Elgarish prelude to the service. "Tuba Tune" by Cocker depicted her trumpet-filled, grandiose entrance march. A Mendelssohn "Prelude and Fugue" was the weighty, very English Offertory. Guilmant's "Caprice" was a most unusual grace-note to the seriousness of the service with its playful "Mighty Wurlitzer" synthetic cleverness and the "Exultemus" by Whitlock was the joyful exit procession.

On the second part of the program, the only familiar composer was Camille Saint Saens whose Prelude and Fugue in B Major was not at all traditional. The Prelude was like an operatic aria over an ostinato accompaniment and the choice of stops was grating and annoying in tone. The Fugue had an unusual pert and playful theme which moved quickly through more traditional compositional lines. It developed in importance and created massive climaxes supported by impressive pedal work.

Four short contemporary works by Diemer, Herford, Wood and Lanquetuit, none of whom are familiar except possibly to other organists, closed the program. Mr. Welch brought out the best in all of them, stressing the variety of their styles and making excellent and expressive use of the fine, renovated Harris organ.

The last concert of the Monarch Concert Series will feature the Austrian organist Marek Kudlicki on Friday night, May 6th. That's a far more humane time to schedule a spring concert on the peninsula.

Agency on Aging addresses issues April 21

Two important topics will be covered at the April Area Agency on Aging Advisory Council meeting on April 21.

The impact of AIDS on the long term care system will be discussed by Kathy Whilden and Francie Newfield. This is a preview of their presentation that will be made at the Governor's Conference on Aging in Sacramento in early May.

Also being discussed is the annual update of the agency's area plan. This is the fourth and final year of the current area plan. The public is encouraged to attend and participate in the public hearing.

Input from this public hearing will be an important part of the new four year plan that will be developed in the next year. Issues affecting the elderly in Monterey County are of prime interest to this Advisory Council as they are mandated to:

1) advocate on behalf of senior citizens in Monterey County;

2) allocate Older American Act and County general funds;

3) provide leadership, coordination and community development on behalf of this population.

Draft copies of the area plan can be obtained from any library or by calling the Area Agency on Aging at 757-5905 or 375-8132.

The meeting will be held at the Gonzales Multi-Service Center, 225 Elko St., Gonzales at 12:30 p.m., following the senior lunch at 11:30 a.m.

Setting up an alibi

BOB (Jeff Perkins) sets up the alibi that is the center of the madcap farce with Fiona (Jimmee Greco) in Alan Ayckbourn's How the Other Half Loves. The comedy plays on consecutive Fridays and Saturdays, April 15-16 and 22-23 in the Pawnshop Theater at Carmel High School.

Call of the wild

DOES ANYBODY know how long Jack London's old-West style saloon and restaurant in Carmel has been in business? Seems this cordial oasis is an ancient Carmel tradition although the tourists are more aware of the Hog's Breath Inn across the street (on San Carlos between Fifth and Sixth) which of course is owned by a former local politician.

Jack London's is tucked away off a sunny courtyard at the end of a mall, but it's always nicely packed at lunchtime and dinner and you can enjoy the bar nightly 'til 2 a.m. or even become one of the regulars. As bars go, this one is the definition of excellence: rich, dark mahogany is everywhere complemented by brass, the bartenders are friendly and attentive, and GiantsVision is on the tube.

Burgers and fries are the faithful standbys here and the onion soup gratinee has a loyal following, but manager Steve Whitfill has been adding new items to the menu since he came in with new owner Jack Hill about two years ago. The "personal size" pizza at $5.25 actually fed two of us but you could no doubt eat one yourself if you had a big appetite; ours came piping hot with artichoke hearts and pepperoni and tasted great with a cold glass of Monterey Vineyards Chardonnay.

A large part of a Friday afternoon drifted away at Jack London's as we ruminated on the great author of Call of the Wild and other classics, admiring the restaurant's wolf logo on brightly colored T-shirts and sweats. The special sandwich of the day, a ham and cheddar on sliced sourdough bread, drew enthusiastic praise from our dining companion and we succumbed to desser: after learning that Jack's pastries come from Gucci Pastry.

As Hemingway might have said, but didn't, good authors make good drinking companions...

LIT BIZ continued, if you are between 35 and 45 years old you were probably deeply influenced by The Howdy Doody Show, network TV's first kiddie show, which shaped the minds of the Baby Boomer generation. Now comes Stephen Davis' book, "Say Kids! What Time Is It?" (Little, Brown) to reveal shocking details from behind the scenes in Doodyville. The author's father was producer of the show. Among the nuggets:

- Princess SummerFallWinterSpring, who was every kid's image of angelic womanhood, was actually a foul-mouthed chorine with shall we say a disreputable past;
- The actor who did Chief Thunderthud and FlubaDub liked to make the puppets do lewd things to each other, and TV was live in those days;
- Clarabelle the Clown was mean as hell and used to squirt the kids in the Peanut Gallery with his seltzer bottle, and the true reason why Clarabelle never spoke was that the producers didn't want to pay him union wages.

If you can't live without more of this inside dirt, there's a copy of the book in the Monterey Public Library...

...Deadlines, Doxies & Demagogues is the title of Carmel author Robert L. Hutchison's nostalgic and humorous book of anecdotes about the newspaper business in Joplin, Mo. in the earlier part of the century. Hutchison tells why Jack Dempsey backed off a fistfight, what Will Rogers said to an Oklahoma governor facing mob action, and how a famous evangelist met his obligation to charity with a rubber check...

...Add evangelists and books, Carmel's Jessica Everingham, herself something of a literary insider, reports from New York that Rev. Jimmy Swaggart and Rev. Jim Bakker are collaborating on a new book called "Should the Clergy Do More Than Lay People?" They certainly should...

THE RIO Grill in the Crossroads has been a popular and innovative restaurant for five years now and some restaurants can get stale once they are well established, but happily the Rio is as fresh and exciting as ever. Just walking into this place will cheer up your day. The walls are covered with outrageous, light-hearted modern art and the tables with butcher paper on which you can doodle with the bright Crayola crayons thoughtfully provided.

But the fun really begins with the food of course, and the Rio's menu is unlike any other in the world. It includes a rabbit quesadilla with ancho chili, crispy Petaluma duck with five spice cure and skirt steak with sesame, soy and ginger marinade. We asked manager Tony Tollner to suggest a favorite and he rattled off a dozen tempting possibilities but finally said, "Well, you can't lose, everything's good." He's right.

After contemplating the many daily specials on the blackboard, we opted for the half slab of barbecued baby back ribs, which were succulent and tender, the house-favorite turkey sandwich with smoked bacon and avocado, which could be the best sandwich in town, and a shared platter of Chinese chicken salad which was an original revelation. It was hot and spicy with at least three varieties of marinade in the distinctly spiced ingredients, including grated carrot, soft vermicelli noodles, ginger, almonds, watercress and cucumber and of course plenty of chicken.

It's worth adding that the service at the Rio continues to be excellent, even superb, and that part of the fun of eating there is checking out the other people. We could swear we caught a glimpse of that famous expatriate financier, that retired major league baseball slugger, that former actress turned animal rights activist...Go to Rio, the weather's fine...

Restoring ailing psyche discussed

HOW TO restore life to an ailing human psyche is the topic for discussion at a "Bringing Books to Life" session of the Monterey Peninsula Friends of C.G. Jung. The program will begin at 7 p.m. Friday, April 15, at All Saints' Church, Ninth and Dolores, Carmel.

The book titled Touching: Body Therapy and Depth Psychology, authored by Deldon Anne McNeely, Ph.D., a Jungian analyst. It illustrates how both talk and body therapies can be integrated in practice; essentially because both establish a dynamic dialogue between the conscious and the unconscious.

Everyone is invited to this and all other presentations of the Friends; prior registration is not necessary; a small donation is requested to help defray expenses.

For more details, call 649-8809; or write 853 Pacific St., Monterey.

MUSIC CORNER

By Jo Ann La Torra

Players encounter minimal troubles

THE MUIR String Quartet, with pianist Jean-Philippe Collard, provided us with a very pleasant evening of chamber music on Saturday, April 9, on the Chamber Music Society series.

Collard joined the quartet after intermission in the Piano Quintet in F Minor of Franck. Piano quintets (with strings) are a relatively recent combination, Schumann's early 19th century work being the first. It must be a tricky medium because, offhand, I can't think of a single composer who wrote more than one, although many wrote multiple piano trios and even piano quartets. Unllike those, the piano in a quintet is constantly threatening to cut loose and become a soloist, as in a concerto. If it lacks the intimacy of the trio or quartet, it makes up for it in drama and thrills.

Franck's reputation rests on a very few works, and this is, deservedly, one of them. It is an exciting and dramatic work, in three movements that have considerable contrast in spite of sharing some material. Franck was an organist, and the thickness of the sonorities here often suggests the organ, but it is not incompatible with this instrumentation. Nevertheless, it can make for problems of voicing which will change with the acoustics of each hall, keeping the performers on their toes.

But the problems appeared to be minimal for Collard and the Muir Quartet. They gave a very good account of the work (they won the Grand Prix du Disque for it in 1985), and the balance with the piano was satisfactory. The second movement especially was vey intense and lovely. Personally I would have liked a bit more arch in the phrasing, with more taper at the end of a phrase, less abruptness, and perhaps a little more relaxation in transitional spots. The piece is long enough — there is plenty of time for it. But that reflects personal taste, not a flaw in the playing.

The concert opened with Haydn's lyrical quartet in G major, Op. 77, No. 1. In retrospect, it seems that the Muir Quartet is not really comfortable with Haydn. The performance was pedestrian — not bad, just not very interesting. Haydn's characteristic rhythmic sharpness was missing, along with the articulations that bring it out, and the unfolding of the structure was not really clear.

There was, however, nothing pedestrian about the Second Quartet of Janacek. Like the Franck, the sound is rather thick; it is very chromatic, and uses an original and expressive harmonic language. It is a moody piece, introspective, personal. Janacek's music is not as well known as it deserves to be, so it was a treat to get to hear this quartet. It doesn't yet seem to "belong" to the Muir Quartet, but they are certainly well on their way with it. The overall impression was good, a satisfying reading.

New Japanese graphics shown

The Tolman Collection of contemporary graphics by Japan's leading artists, sponsored in Carmel by Orientique, will be on display Friday and Saturday, April 15-16 from 11 to 5 p.m. at the Crossing Point Gallery in the Barnyard, Carmel.

The collection represents a range of graphies including woodblock, silk screen, lithograph and etching prints, ranging in style from traditional to abstract. All prints shown are available through The Tolman Collection only.

Artists represented are among the most prominent in the field of Japanese art. They are in the U.S. collections at the Museum of Modern Art (New York), the Smithsonian Institution, Cincinnati Art Museum, the Guggenhein Museum, the Ford and Rockefeller collections as well as many other museums and private collections around the world.

Among the artists represented are Toko Shinoda, who is internationally known for her original paintings. These she executes on a large mural-type format to which she applies huge calligraphic brush strokes in varying shades of ink from jet black to pale gray, often adding a touch of red, green or blue.

Lithography is her medium in making prints. Her technique and subject matter is the same as for her original paintings. She applies her brush directly onto the plate with the same boldness, vigor and sensitivity producing a symphony of gradations of black on white paper. After an edition (never more than 50) is pulled she often adds a stroke of color to each print by hand.

Her feeling for tradition is strong and though old patterns retain their essence, Shinoda constantly reinvigorates them with fresh creative impulses.

Wako Shuji is one of the youngest and most noted artist in Japan. He has already won worldwide acclaim for his work in lithography.

Clifton Karhu's woodblocks are of actual places brought to life on paper with his strong architectual lines and bold colors.

ART NOTES

By Sam Colburn

Call it Merchandising

ALONG WITH the proliferation of artists within the past few years has come the accelerating problem of how to sell what they produce. This has become, what some people think, an art form in itself. The name of it is Merchandising.

There was a time, believe me, when I was so naive as to believe that old saying, "Build a better mousetrap, and the world will beat a path to your door." One of the problems with this glorified variety of selling is that the quality of the product has nothing to do with the vexing question of good and bad art. I read that the world's richest artist is Leroy Nieman. I have seen sketches of his reproduced in Playboy. They had the quality of personal seeing. These were drawings done at the ringside during boxing matches. Now Mr. Nieman has done many works reproduced as posters. These are concerned with the action in certain sports. It looks as if he projected the scenes on to the canvas, painted it in, and then threw on the pigment which seems unrelated to the subject matter.

THE MONTEREY Peninsula Museum of Art continues to present unusual shows. In the main gallery is "The Art of Eating." This is a somewhat ambiguous title, but most of the works do involve food. The painting that you see on entering the main gallery is very large, and is indeed about eating and drinking. Apparently the wine has won out over the food as the title is "Triumph of Bacchus." Gerald Wasserman is represented by two works in gouache, "The Blue Door" and "Mallorquin Memory." They are both rich and sensual. One wall is pretty much taken up with Paul Rangell's lithographs of vegetables — mostly chilis. I am not certain but it seems to me that the name MacDonald-Wright is associated with experiments in color, but the painting of his that is being shown, "Persimmons" is very quiet that way. There is a tiny work by Alex Pellegrini which is quite abstract, and is entitled simply enough, "Watermelon Family." Across from these works is a very rich oil with heavy impasto. The title is satirical, "The Ladies Who Lunch." There are not too many painters these days, but she is one. Her name is Joan Towers.

Marie Brummond has absolute control of her medium which is watercolor. Her "Sun-Kissed" is a beautiful example of what she can do. Henryk Fantazos is showing some phantasies about Still Life. Artists nowdays paint on almost any surface. I can remember when the medium had to be put on certain surfaces. This has all changed — enter Mixed Media. The only problem is that in time there will be changes unless certain rules are followed. I can remember Jean Varda. He combined paint, cement, pieces of mirror, into masterpieces of Hellenic feeling, but due to changes in temperature the pieces of mirror might pop out, and his frames might warp.

So Kelly Detrich presents "Fruit Bowl" which is an acrylic on paper and beautifully painted. "Gumball 7" painted by Charles Bell seems overbearing in realism. Whimsy is part of this exhibit. A mixed-media collage, "Tomato," is full of hearts and one tomato. Jim Dine painted it and it is fun.

David Gilhooly has a surprising ceramic sculpture entitled, "Chocolate Dipped Dagwood," which I think is beautiful and uproarious. Roger Hawkin's "Jenkins, 1987" is a complex piece which is done with oil and graphite on found canvas. I like his use of space and the combination of geometric and organic form. As a lead-in to the gallery is Wayne Thiebault's "Gumballs." He is one of the pop artists whose work is attractive to me. Anyman who can paint a slice of lemon pie and endow it with Form and Feeling has my vote.

Also showing at the museum is Hassel Smith. Apparently he was a resident of the San Francisco Bay area, but has lived in England since 1966. One large painting is calligraphic. The work has become increasingly abstract with time, in fact in the later ones I can discern no original subject matter.

THE PACIFIC Grove Art Center continues to present well-known local artists and those who have had little exposure. Among the later is a lady who is my neighbor, Olga Thorsen. The title of her show is "Impressionist Oils." Actually these paintings are representational. Their color is fresh and the paint quality good.

"Lady in Blue" has feeling. In it she has used a lot of cool color so that the spot of red works very well. "Nude" is warm and the space around the body very well handled. "Elegant Lady" is strong. Olga has used hot color again very effectively in a painted entitled "In the Greenhouse." She was born in Switzerland and studied with many masters.

In the Elmarie Dyke Gallery are the large oil paintings of Jay Campbell. His picture areas are filled with an amazing range of subjects. It is almost as if they were a kaleidoscope of his mind. They are also like signboards on which the old messages were not completely removed.

The main or David Gill Gallery is showing the color field paintings of George De Groat. He has been an artist for many years and his work shows it. George has evolved a very personal style with figures. There is a very logical progression of color. I would say they move from ultra violet to infra red, but that is not a correct expression. It is merely a subjective statement on my part. The line and mass of the figures define the form. These are, somehow, lonely people. There will be no pregnancies among these ladies. I must say that I liked the painting on the end wall. It is not in the color sequence, and vibrates with hot and cold color.

THE MARJORIE Evans Gallery in the Sunset Center in Carmel is very long and narrow. It is not a place to view paintings that require any distance. Jim Casteel is showing a large number of abstract works. The picture areas are defined not only by the frames, but by various subtle rectangular areas within which he develops shapes. He has evolved an imagery which would seem non-objective to me, but, if he says abstract, then that is what it is. Many of these paintings are against the same basic color area. In one sequence this area is red, and in another blue. I would think that these pieces might have been alternated in color rather than all hot together and all cool likewise.

CITY OF CARMEL-BY-THE-SEA
ORDINANCE 88-06

AN URGENCY ORDINANCE AMENDING THE COMMERCIAL DESIGN AND LAND USE REGULATIONS RELATED TO ALLOWED DEVELOPMENT AND SECOND STORY STRUCTURES IN ALL COMMERCIAL LAND USE DISTRICTS.

O.P. 21811

WHEREAS, the City of Carmel-by-the-Sea has an established character of commercial design that is the result of decades of incremental development and which is a source of enjoyment for both residents and visitors alike; and

WHEREAS, this character is unique in its diversity of architecture; it also reflects many elements that transcend this diversity to create harmony; and

WHEREAS, the character of the commercial districts could be harmed by additions to existing buildings or the construction of new buildings that are out of scale with existing structures; and

WHEREAS, the current design regulations have been found to allow an excessive amount of site coverage and floor area and have been found to contain ambiguities which may lead to the needless demolition of existing buildings to the detriment of the established character of the City; and

WHEREAS, the City Council adopted a six month moratorium on second floor additions to allow the Planning Commission time to study the existing regulations; and

WHEREAS, the current design regulations have been extensively studied by the Planning Commission and some of this work has already been adopted as part of the General Plan; and

WHEREAS, until the City Council completes the review and adoption of comprehensive ordinance amendments, the City risks harming its village character through approval of inappropriate design proposals that nonetheless conform with existing ordinances; and

WHEREAS, adopting an urgency ordinance that contains the elements of the design ordinance drafted by the Planning Commission, will allow reasonable applications to procede but will protect the City from proposals that are inconsistent with the General Plan while a permanent ordinance is being prepared and adopted; and

WHEREAS, these revisions have been found to be consistent with the General Plan of the City.

NOW, THEREFORE, the City Council of the City of Carmel-by-the-Sea does ordain as follows:

SECTION ONE. Chapter 17.12 of the Municipal Code shall be amended in its entirety and shall be replaced as shown in Exhibit.

SECTION TWO. The following definition shall be added to Section 17.04.370:

Interaccessibility — Commercial Sites:

The ability to move between structures on the same or an adjacent building site without first exiting to an open space area.

SECTION THREE. The following definition shall be added to Chapter 17.04:

Floor: A surface that is horizontal, or nearly horizontal, located within the interior of a structure and which is intended or suitable for walking or standing upon.

SECTION FOUR. The findings in Section 17.18.120 shall be amended to read as follows:

A. That the proposed action will not result in the conversion of any floor space occupied by residential dwelling units to nonresidential use located at any level above the first story.

B. That, pursuant to Section 65590 of the Government Code of the State, the residential units have not been occupied by persons of low or moderate income, as defined by the AMBAG, within one year of filing the application for the demolition or conversion; or

C. That replacement housing will be provided for the residential housing units to be demolished or converted and that such new units will be located on the site, within the City, or within three miles of the coastal zone and will be available within three years of the demolotion of the existing residential unit(s).

SECTION FIVE. Finding (B) in Section 17.18.180 shall be amended to read as follows:

B. That the proposed development has been found consistent with Sections 17.10.010 (B), (M) and (N) related to the demolition and conversion of residential uses.

SECTION SIX: Violations. Any person, or firm or corporation whether as principal or agent, employed or otherwise, violating or causing or permitting the violation of the provisions of this ordinance is guilty of an infraction. Any part of any building erected contrary to the provisions of this ordinance is hereby declared to be unlawful and a public nuisance and the City Attorney shall, upon order of the City Council, immediately commence action for the abatement or removal thereof. Should any person, firm or corporation violate the terms of this ordinance and any action is authorized by the City Council or the City Attorney or is in fact filed for said violations, no other action shall be taken on any application filed by or on behalf of said person, firm or corporation until the litigation has been resolved.

SECTION SEVEN: Severability. If any part of this ordinance is found to be unenforceable, such finding shall not affect the enforceability of any other part.

SECTION EIGHT: Effective Date. This ordinance is hereby declared to be an urgency ordinance as established in section 65858 of the California Government Code. This ordinance shall take effect immediately upon approval by at least a four-fifths vote of the City Council and shall remain effective for forty-five days unless repealed or extended as etablished by State Statute. The terms and provisions of this ordinance shall apply to all projects in all commercial districts that have not yet received at least one discretionary approval for a use permit or design review. Any project or application for which at least one discretionary approval has been received from the Planning Commission shall be allowed to continue through normal permit processes and to project completion.

SECTION NINE: Statement of Urgency. The City Council finds that there is a current and immediate threat to public health, safety and welfare from continued approvals of projects that are inconsistent with the small-scale and residential character of Carmel-by-the-Sea. The Council also finds that existing ordinances can result in unacceptable building bulk, and land use intensity while providing insufficient landscaping and open space for public enjoyment. Failure to address these problems may degrade the quality of life and of the environment enjoyed by City residents, increase congestion, decrease visual quality and conflict with the City's General Plan.

PASSED AND ADOPTED by the City Council of the City of Carmel-by-the-Sea this 5th day of April, 1988, by the following roll call vote:

AYES: COUNCIL MEMBERS: EVANS, FISCHER, WRIGHT, EASTWOOD
NOES: COUNCIL MEMBERS: LAIOLO
ABSENT: COUNCIL MEMBERS: NONE

Own a Little Piece of All Outdoors

"Little", of course, is a relative adjective. If someone were to offer you 7.7 acres in Carmel for $350,000, you'd say that's "big" and you'd grab it. That's not about to happen, but...there is a perfectly beautiful 7.7 acre site out in Carmel Valley that is priced at $350,000.

It's 1½ miles east of the Valley Village, past Los Tulares, past Stone Pines, just before you come to Sleepy Hollow. It has several hundred feet frontage on Carmel Valley Road, rises gently to a building site perhaps 50 feet above the road, then more steeply to a magnificent site at the top of the knoll. Most of the land is clear. There are a number of graceful oaks dotted about the landscape. A road has been cut across the face of the knoll, bringing you to the commanding view point at the top.

The lower site already contains a caretaker's house, a low, natural wood cottage with 2 bedrooms, 2 baths, a large living room, attractive kitchen and a 2-car garage, 1275 square feet in all. It's fairly new (6 years), equipped with all the comforts, and a great place to stay while building the major house on the heights. It has a well, a Cal-Am connection and solar heating.

This is a spectacular location. From the top of the knoll, you look across a forested area, over the winding Carmel River down below, past a number of beautiful houses perched on hilltops and far away to the soaring Santa Lucia Mountains that rim this spread of "all outdoors."

The "lots" that are your neighbors' are variously 10 acres, 10 acres, and one which is 48 acres. The entire area is zoned for 5-acre minimums, so there will always be a sense of space, a communion with nature, a feeling that you do, indeed, own a piece of all outdoors.

CARMEL BY BILL BATES

CARMEL LEGENDS

Anyone who thinks that equality for women in business is a new idea just hasn't heard about ABBIE J. HUNTER. She had it going nearly 100 years ago in San Francisco. There, in 1889, she organized and operated a business called The Women's Real Estate Investment Company. Just how this reacted on her male competitors is left to your imagination. In any case, someone (another woman!) sued her for "misappropriation of funds." Eventually she was acquitted and turned her attention to Carmel. She learned that Mr. S.J. Duckworth was having problems with his development here, made him an offer he couldn't refuse and became his partner. Her merchandising approach was quite different. She extended Ocean Avenue down to the sea, caused a rather elaborate bathhouse to be built on the beach, and built a boardwalk from the bathhouse to the Pine Inn, newly built at the corner of Monte Verde. She directed her effort to selling lots north of Ocean and west of Junipero. Possibly because she was under-capitalized, or the Southern Pacific failed to extend its line, or she was just too early — whatever, the project failed and she tossed the torch (and land) to Messrs. Devendorf and Powers in 1902. Many ladies have joined the real estate ranks here since ABBIE, and they probably owe her a hug.

A Special Supplement to The Carmel Pine Cone/Carmel Valley Outlook,
the Pacific Grove Monarch,
and the Monterey Peninsula Review
April 14-15, 1988

SPRING AND summer are seasons to be expressive, and Saks Fifth Avenue in Carmel Plaza can outfit both women and men in clothes that show off the body. Choose from bright colors, bold patterns, and designs that range from casual to sophisticated. (Photograph by Gregg Wutke).

Prepare for a body-conscious summer at Saks in Carmel

Spirited and sporty clothes make for rising temperatures as they show off the body.

Casual or sophisticated, shorts are making a comeback. They appear in denim, knits or flowing fabrics and are found cuffed and citified under boleros or longer jackets.

Bright colors and bold patterns look better than ever. Turquoise, fuschia, emerald and grape alone or as bold tones are played against black in striping, graphic or floral patterns.

A season to be expressive, fun filled and bright awaits at Saks Fifth Avenue.

Saks is located in Carmel Plaza. For details, call 624-6300.

Enhance fashion investments with accessories from Melange

The owners of Melange know what it's like to purchase an expensive outfit and then be forced to spend another bundle on accessories — that's why they came up with an alternative.

Combining low prices and high quality, Melange offers a large assortment of belts, scarves, seasonal jackets and lounging wear. All of these are purchased direct from the manufacturer at discount prices.

Those are, in turn, passed along to the consumer.

"You don't have to pay a lot to enhance that major investment," says Pat Shure, who co-owns the store with sister Kathleen Dean, mother Louise Suda and sister Sharon Halladay. "We price things at a very fair value — that's what we're known for."

Because Melange buys direct from large companies, the names on the products vary, depending on availability. But Shure guarantees that Melange only carries the finest merchandise.

Melange is located in the Carmel Rancho Shopping Center (behind Bob McGinnis) and is open from 9 a.m. to 6 p.m. Monday through Saturday.

Benetton serves a colorful array of Italian sportswear

Benetton and color — color and Benetton — the two are interchangeable. The only difference between them is Benetton goes a step further and offers its dazzling array of color in unique Italian knit sportswear.

Catering to men, women and children, the small new Carmel Plaza store also stocks many fashions cut in unisex styling.

Everything in the store is imported from Italy, says owner Michel. That includes all of the fixtures and the brass mannequins, which display the clothes in a totally different fashion than found elsewhere in this country.

With accessories ranging from perfume and body gel, to sun hats and belts, Benetton deserves a closer look.

Benetton is open seven days a week from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. Phone: 625-6969.

IN DUTCH, Knuffels means "little hugs and kisses." Knuffels is also the name of a new shop for children in The Barnyard. The boutique carries shoes, playclothes, sportswear and toys, for boys and girls from infants through size 14. For complete details, call Knuffels at 625-2216. (Photograph by Gregg Wutke).

Knuffels supplies children with unique designer clothing

Ever wonder why children's clothing stores are usually cramped and overstocked? Well so did Barbara Klatt and Karen Bottemanne — that's why they opened up Knuffels in The Barnyard.

Knuffels, in Dutch, means little hugs and kisses, a word that Bottemanne heard many times when living with her family in The Netherlands.

Most customers, Bottemanne says, describe the children's boutique, which opened last month, as "simple and elegant and airy."

From play clothes and sports jackets to little girls' lingerie, Knuffels is the place to shop for boys and girls ages infant to 14.

Knuffels also carries shoes by Keds, Toddler University and Enrico Coveri, plus cuddly toys in the form of bears, rabbits and squirrels.

Bab's Bridal exists solely to serve that lucky lady

While some stores cater mainly to brides, there are few that exist only for the lucky lady, such as Bab's Bridal in Capitola.

"We really consider ourselves a bridal shop," says Mary Zontine, who co-owns the store with Rosalie Larson. "We really like to concentrate on the bride."

Bab's has just about every accessory a bride could ever dream of, such as dyable shoes, which Zontine can make any color of the rainbow.

"I'm a hot shot dyer," she boasts. "You name a color — I can match it."

Bab's also custom makes its head pieces and stocks a complete selection of veils, gloves, invitations, ring bearer pillows, guest books, nylons and even a wedding planning book called "Planning a Wedding to Remember."

"It's good for people who don't have someone to hold their hand and guide them along," explains Zontine of the complete planning book.

Bab's is open seven days a week from 10 a.m. to 8 p.m. Monday through Friday, 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Saturday and noon to 4 p.m. Sunday. The store is located at 820 Bay Ave. in Capitola. Phone: 475-0533.

Experience a makeover in a calm, Carmel Valley setting

While some cosmetologists may claim to offer a personal touch, Jane Dickman gives that boast a new meaning.

In the privacy of her Carmel Valley clinic, Dickman gives complete makeovers, where she meets with a woman in a calm, one-on-one environment.

"It's a very private and personal experience," says the licensed cosmetology instructor. She adds that beauty salons are often noisy and hectic, with the beautician trying to force the "in" style on the client.

"Basically I do a hands-on lesson with the women on how to use makeup and hair," she explains.

That service also encompasses bridal parties, where Dickman is able to incorporate a "theme" into the makeup.

"I work entirely with the wedding group to be cohesive," she says.

In an attempt to personalize her service, Dickman meets with prospective clients for about an hour before coming up with a plan. The woman then comes back for a treatment which lasts from one to four hours. Dickman provides "before and after" pictures.

Jane Dickman's office is open from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday through Saturday, and is located at 26384 Carmel Rancho Lane, Suite 201. Phone: 624-6630.

Viking Sails stocks gifts that memories are made of Whether it's a special wedding gift for a loved one or that traditional caketop that will bring back memories of your wedding for years to come, Viking Sails is the place to shop.

CUT CRYSTAL bowls, stemware and candle holders are but some of the gift ideas available at Viking Sails in Carmel-by-the-Sea. For 35 years, Viking Sails has been the source for heirloom quality blown glass, figurines and tableware. (Photograph by Gregg Wutke).

For 35 years, Viking Sails has been providing unique gifts in its small store, located next to the U.S. Post Office on Fifth Avenue between San Carlos and Dolores streets in downtown Carmel.

Viking Sails offers caketops in Dresden china, which features a cast of the bride and groom and usually becomes an heirloom, as well as those of blown glass. The blown glass caketops often are more ornate and show images such as hearts and doves.

For gift ideas, Viking Sails co-owner Kathleen Ritter suggests Nambeware, a sandcasted, hand-polished cookware that goes from the freezer to the oven.

"This has been a favorite wedding gift of this store for a long time," says Ritter.

She also touts Viking Sails' cut crystal bowls, stemware and candle holders, and adds that the store also carries Villeroy and Boch tableware.

"Viking Sails is considered a tradition as far as giftware in Carmel," boasts Gary Ritter.

Store hours are 9 a.m. to 6 p.m. Monday through Saturday and 11 a.m. to 6 p.m. Sundays. Viking Sails also gift wraps presents and ships via UPS anywhere in the world. Phone: 624-7029.

Ford's Department Store ready to serve peninsula brides

KAREN MIGNANO, Ford's Wedding Consultant, can help you simplify gift giving for your wedding. She has had more than 20 years of merchandising experience with Holman's and Ford's department stores in Pacific Grove. Her buying and consulting areas have included fine china, crystal, silver, housewares and domestics. Call her for an appointment — 372-7131, to register in Ford's Wedding Registry and receive a lovely gift when you register.

Ford's offers many services for brides-to-be. The store features wedding invitations, bridal party gifts and quality merchandise from leading brands such as Lenox, Gorham, Mikasa, Oneida, Noritake, Waterford, Wedgwood, Reed and Barton, Cuisinart, Calphalon, Fieldcrest and Wamsutta.

Many services are also offered such as a Bridal Credit Plan where purchases can be made three months prior to the wedding, and not billed until after the wedding.

Ford's offers a new Homemaker account where newlyweds are offered a contract account with no finance charge for the first 12 months of marriage. And there is a China Club Plan where china and flatware can be paid for over a 24-month period with no finance charge.

Ford's Bridal Registry is an easy and efficient way to let your friends and family know your gift preferences.

When you sign up with Ford's you will be asked to fill your preference in three areas: tableware, domestics and housewares.

A Bridal Registry book is kept in each of those departments. When friends or family come to shop for gifs, they can quickly refer to your gift preference list. These lists are also kept up to date on purchases made by friends so there is no duplication of purchases.

If for any reason Ford's is temporaily out of stock of an item on your list, they will order it promptly if purchased by your friends. You will receive a Bridal Gift Certificate and you will be notified as soon as it arrives.

Ford's makes gift giving easier because of the large selection carried in tableware, domestics and housewares.

European artistry reflected in cakes from Del Monte Pastry

If you're planning a wedding, birthday party or any special occasion, keep in mind that cakes are a specialty at Del Monte Pastry.

The cakes, which are always made from scratch, come in six flavors and can serve anywhere from 20 to 500 guests. Of course, the cakes can be decorated in the colors of your bridal party and to your specifications and are the favorite of selective caterers.

Also, if you have been a regular at Del Monte Pastry during the past 12 years, you will probably notice the new face of master pastry chef George Haag, who with wife Laura, recently moved to the peninsula from Switzerland and will become partners with Fritz and Barbara Naef.

Master European baker Hans Fruhmann will retire this year.

The next time you're shopping at Del Monte Center, take a break, sit down and enjoy a pastry and coffee at Del Monte Pastry — it's located next to Lucky's in the convenience center.

The store is open from 7 a.m. to 7 p.m. Monday through Friday; 7 a.m. to 6 p.m. Saturday, and noon to 5 p.m. Sunday.

Del Monte Shopping Center upgrades to better serve customers

Del Monte Shopping Center is the major shopping center in the area, conveniently located at the Soledad and Munras exits off Highway 1, between Monterey and Carmel.

Macy's and Mervyn's, the center's anchor stores, are complemented by more than 90 other local, regional and national stores and services.

The 20-year old center is continuing a remodeling and expansion program started five years ago with the major work yet to be done. When completed, the center will provide shoppers a dramatic and creative atmosphere in which to shop and browse the one-of-a-kind stores and many national chains.

Part of the effort to better serve the customer is being met with the relocation of several stores within the center to more convenient locations. The 24-hour laundromat has been relocated to the service area near Lucky's; Del Monte Travel is now located in the back of the center between Mervyn's and Dean Witter, providing convenient parking for their customers; Wherehouse Records has tripled their space by moving further back into the center and J & L Stationers has tripled their space with two convenient entrances, now located next to Bank of America. Modern and attractive in design, the store now offers customers a complete line of office products and a wider assortment of gift ideas.

Zales relocated near the fountain to accommodate the new Lenscrafters store, the most modern concept in eye care where customers can get their eyes examined and walk out with their glasses in a little over an hour.

Many new changes are taking place at Del Monte Center and all are planned with providing better service to customers.

New mall hours are 10 a.m. to 9 p.m. Monday through Friday; 10 a.m. to 7 p.m. Saturday and 11 a.m. to 5 p.m. Sunday. Macy's and Mervyn's are open 'til 9 on Saturday nights.

INVESTMENT CLOTHING in a wealth of summer pastels has been assembled by the Carmel Dress Shop. The store, on Ocean Avenue at Dolores Street in Carmel, features one of the best selections of Castleberry knits on the peninsula, not to mention jewelry by such names as Napier and Christian Dior. (Photograph by Gregg Wutke).

Spring colors abound at Carmel Dress Shop

Spring colors abound at the Carmel Dress Shop in downtown Carmel, where tradition is the catchword for the vernal season.

"We've got everything," boasts Gordon Winge, who owns the store with wife Lucille. "We've got every color in the book."

He names peach, lavender, green and pastels, as a few highlights.

With, perhaps, the best selection of Castleberry knits to choose from on the peninsula, the Carmel Dress Shop offers suits, coats, jumpers and dresses — all made of Optique yarns of Dacron.

"We've got the works," says Gordon. "Nobody carries the selection we have."

Located on Ocean Avenue at Dolores Street, the 40-year-old store is a place where it simply makes sense to shop.

"We stick to the classic look," says Lucille. "Investment clothing is what it is — it never goes out of style."

The Carmel Dress Shop also offers a complete selection of designs in Ultrasuede, a man-made fabric that wears like leather, but is completely washable. "We're the biggest seller of Ultrasuede around," boasts Lucille.

To complement its fashions, the store stocks ample jewelry made by famous names such as Christian Dior and Napier.

The Carmel Dress Shop is open 9:30 a.m. to 5:30 p.m. Monday through Saturday and noon to 4 p.m. Sunday.

Susan Bloch-Farrington's Pacific Grove showroom/salon builds a better wardrobe

Susan Bloch-Farrington offers a new and different way to shop for clothing. Individual appointments at her showroom-salon are arranged to fit a busy woman's schedule. Wednesday evening, 4 to 8 p.m., is drop-in time — no appointment is necessary. And every month there's a "trunk show" — an opportunity to meet and talk with featured designers while trying new looks. Here shopping is fun.

Susan says: "Shopping by appointment means that I can help the customer save time. We can focus on the type of cloths she wants, clothes to fit her style of work or play. This is a time to experiment in a supportive setting without any obligation to buy."

The clothing Susan offers her customers is comfortable and versatile; extraordinary but not necessarily expensive. And customers can find clothing in all sizes — petite to extra-large and in-between.

The next trunk show — Saturday, April 23, from 11 to 5 — will feature Palo Alto designer Jean Krois' cotton separates, in colors and patterns inspired by wood, stone and shadow. Also featured will be jewelry by peninsula designer Diane Ericson. Her pieces combine handpainted cloth, beading, suede or pottery.

Susan Bloch-Farrington's showroom is at 505 Lighthouse, Suite 204, in Pacific Grove. Call her at 646-1822 for an appointment.

VENDETTI offers an alternative to luxurious fur fashions produced at the expensive of animals. Vendetti uses alpaca, mohair, angora or cashmere — furs that are combed off the animal — instead of mink or rabbit skins. In addition to custom-made knits, Vendetti also prides itself in stylings by Dino Valino, Joyce Valpey, Jutta Mitchell, Nagano and Zanella. (Photograph by Gregg Wutke).

Appetite for luxury appeased with Vendetti custom designs

Monique Vendetti and Lucien LeComte say they are quite pleased and a little suprised by the enormous response they have had to Vendetti, a store which offers an alternative to the traditional fur coat, along with countless unique fashions.

Featuring custom-designed coats by Monique, Vendetti is now entering its ninth month at its Lincoln Avenue location in Carmel-by-the-Sea.

"The biggest thing we've discovered, since we opened the store, is how many custom-made coats we're making," says LeComte, referring to the customers who sit down with Monique and come up with an original style. "We fabricate a one-of-a-kind that they take part in with the designer."

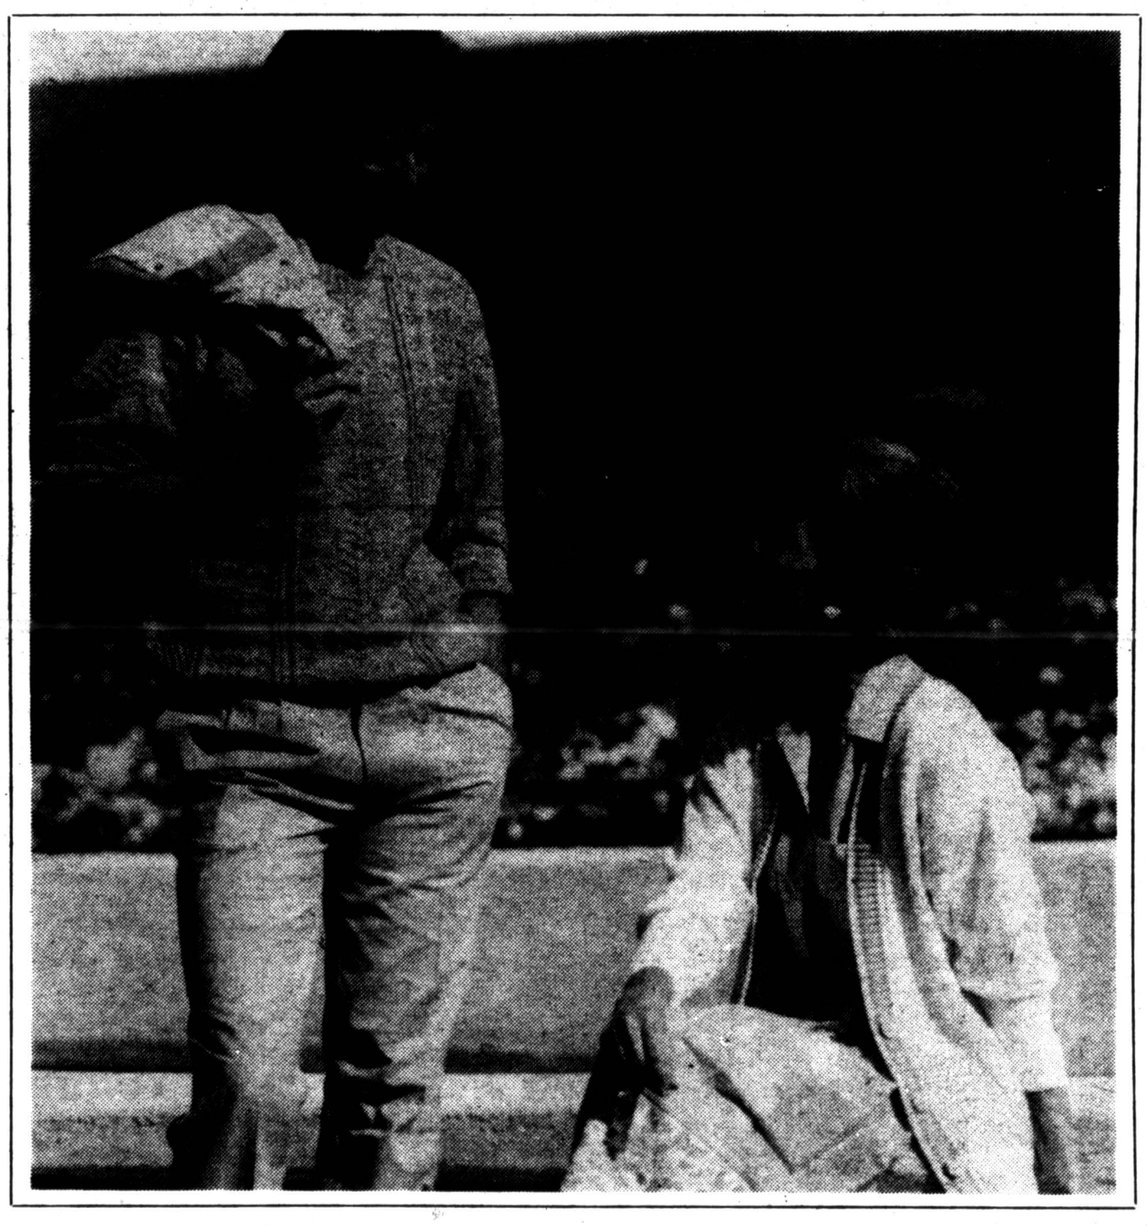
Vendetti coats are composed of hair that is combed off the animal instead of cut off after the animal is killed. Vendetti uses alpaca, mohair, angora and cashmere instead of mink or rabbit skins.

LeComte adds that there has been such great response that Vendetti will soon open a store in the Union Square area of San Francisco.

In addition to custom-made knits, Vendetti also prides itself in unique stylings by relatively little-known designers.

"We're trying not to get big names, but discoveries," says LeComte. "When we get a line we make sure no one else in town has it."

With that in mind, Vendetti offers treasures by Dino Valino, Joyce Valpey, Jutta Mitchell, Nagano and Zanella.



CARMEL PENDLETON celebrates spring with a beautiful array of cottons, blends and lightweight wools — all designed with the quality features Pendleton is famous for. In addition to career dressing looks, there is also a full line of sportswear perfect for summer activities. (Photograph by Gregg Wutke).

Spring/summer colors reflected in Carmel Pendleton collection

Pendleton is not just wool. Much to the surprise of most people, Pendleton has four distinct seasons — just as weather does.

At Carmel Pendleton, the spring and summer line is composed of a beautiful array of cottons, cotton blends, polyesters, and lightweight wools — all designed with that same traditional styling Pendleton is famous for.

In addition to career dressing looks, there is also a full line of sportswear that is perfect for all of those summer activities.

Both men and women can choose from the bright, summer colors and those subtle pastel hues of spring.

Visit Carmel Pendleton and be pleasantly suprised at what Pendleton is now showing in non-wool merchandise.

TRADITION is the catchword for the spring collection of fashions at Elizabeth Simmons in the Crossroads, Carmel. The shop carries designs by Adele Simpson, St. John Knits, Albert Nipon and more, and in-house alterations are a specialty. "From daytime, to cocktail to black tie, we have it," says owner Carol Speegle. (Photograph by Gregg Wutke).

Exclusive lines, attentive service at Elizabeth Simmons

When you stop and think about it, there's really not much more you could ask for when shopping than quality merchandise backed by attentive service. At Elizabeth Simmons Fashions in The Crossroads, those benefits are a given.

In business for 33 years, Elizabeth Simmons maintains tradition as the catchword for its spring collection.

"You don't see designer fashions in every single store," says owner Carol Speegle, who names Albert Nipon, St. John Knits and Adele Simpson as some of the labels she carries. "Especially a small store like this."

Most often, she continues, it is only the larger stores that carry such exclusive lines. Elizabeth Simmons is an exceptional small store.

When shopping at Elizabeth Simmons, you'll notice that the immediate bonus is thoughtful service.

"This is our major thing," boasts Speegle. "Our in-house alterations are better than anybody else s."

Performed by European seamstress Renata, alterations can be simple or complex.

"We don't only do hems," Speegle says. "We do major operations."

Elizabeth Simmons carries designs to complement any occasion. "From daytime, to cocktail to black tie, we have it," she says.

The boutique also offers a selection of belts, scarves and costume jewelry.

With easy parking and no stairs to climb, Elizabeth Simmons is open from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. weekdays and noon to 5 p.m. Sundays.

Light-weight woolens hearken summer at Hilda of Iceland

Don't for a minute believe that the wool fashions displayed at Hilda of Iceland, Ltd. are solely for winter wearing.

"The super-new, light-weight wool is condusive to year-round wearing on the Monterey Peninsula," says manager Diane Swayne. "The thinner, lighter version has the same warmth and less weight."

Hilda Ltd., located on Ocean Avenue between San Carlos and Dolores streets, offers a rich collection of traditional handknits and contemporary European-styled fashions for both men and women.

Swayne adds that the fashions recently imported from Iceland include a myriad of color featuring spring pastels and summer brights.

Hilda Ltd., in preparation for, perhaps, the most beautiful season of the year, has also changed the store's look.

"Come see our new look," says Swayne, "both in light-weight wools and a facelift for the store."

SPRING PASTELS and summer brights are incorporated in the new selection of knits offered at Hilda of Iceland on Ocean Avenue in Carmel. This time of year the shop features light weaves of its famous Icelandic woolens, in contemporary, warm-weather styles for both women and men.

Located in the Del Monte Shopping Center, Command Performance is a full-service salon with 13 stylists and a manicurist, with a hairdo to fit everyone.

Krause says that every six weeks instructors from world class salons come to Command Performance and give the stylists a three-hour seminar.

"They're constantly being updated," she explains. "A lot of people think that stylists only cut hair one way, we're not like that."

Command Performance also employs Danelle, a "hair artist," who has worked there several years and is on hand to relay her knowledge to the other stylists. Says Krause, "She's absolutely wonderful!"

Krause adds that Command Performance specializes in French braiding and "up-dos," which are the perfect style for weddings, proms and parties.

In order to spread the word, Command Performance has three members on a styling team, which gives "Art of Looking Good" seminars free of charge to members of the community.

dark suits for evening and navy blazers worn with cosmopolitan flair. The Polo Sportswear Collection captures a spirit of individuality and active style, complementing the tailored clothing to complete the picture of a sophisticated and varied lifestyle.

Lauren's appreciation for old world elegance, however, is most evident in his attention to detail — the individual qualities of each of his designs that set them apart in the field of men's clothing.

This season, Lauren introduces a dramatic departure in neckwear. Lauren entered the menswear field in 1967 with the introduction of unique and brilliantly patterned neckties. For sping, his collection once again assumes its leadership role with a new Polo tie in an exciting array of fine fabrics. Graphic deco pattern ties, big antique prints, vivid abstract prints and offbeat foulard patterns — even the most proper and conservative tie contains a twist, an excitement and note of individuality.

The importance of details in gentlemen's dressing is carried through into this season's collection of fine dress shirts. Ranging from vivid pastel candy stripe patterns to antique deco patterns, these shirts convey a vintage polish. The refined drama of the Polo style is evident in the subtle shirt and tie combinations tht suggest a worldly and understated elegance.

Lauren's unsurpassed attention to detail remains consistent from season to season, deeply rooted in a tradition of quality and elegance. Always refining his distinctive style, Lauren continues to bring newness and vitality to the collection.

The spring 1988 collection can be viewed at Polo, located on Mission Street at Sixth Avenue in Carmel-by-the-Sea. For details, call 625-0562.
